tion.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—The New Orleans city government today struck back at the Governor's declaration of partial martial law here, obtaining a Civil District Court order to prevent a new Police Board which Senator Huey P. Long decreed for the city from taking office.

Following last on the seizure of the City Registrar of Voters' office by Senator Long's National Guardsmen, acting under a proclamation signed by Gov. O. K. Allen, the city defied the State authorities by going before Civil District Judge Hugh C. Cagge and getting a preliminary restraining order. It was directed against a proposed new Police Board for the city, provided for in a bill pushed through the recent Legislature by Senator Long.

Long's Move Aimed at Mayor.
The bill was designed to take away from Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, bitter opponent of the State administration, the power of police authority in the city by placing the police under a board of seven named by seven civic organizations.

Mayor Walmsley, joined by City Commissioners and other New Orleans officials, signed the petition to the courts for an injunction against the new board's functioning. Judge Cagge issued the preliminary order, restraining in effect a hearing on the injunction plea proper is held Monday. The new board had been scheduled to take office at noon tomorrow.

City Attorney Edward M. Robert announced the city would attack the new Orleans Police Board law on the ground that irregularity of procedure in the Legislature rendered it unconstitutional.

Governor Issues "Warning."
Simultaneously with the city's court action, Gov. Allen, from Senator Long's political headquarters in the Roosevelt Hotel, issued a statement in which he said:

"I will be known as the center of learning and science; the center of the greatest highway, railway and waterway development in the world; and that the reign of vice and crime is a thing of the past. Let no one try to flout the warning I have given."

The statement appeared to refer to the Governor's recent threat to prosecute and remove from office Mayor Walmsley, District Attorney Eugene Stanley and Chief of Police George Reyer of New Orleans as a result of Senator Long's charges that the city was a cesspool of iniquity.

HOOVER WRITES A BOOK, 'CHALLENGE TO LIBERTY,' TO BE OUT IN SEPTEMBER

PALTO ALTO, Cal., July 31.—Former President Herbert Hoover has turned author, and his book, "The Challenge to Liberty," will be issued in September.

The book will not discuss partisan political issues, Paul Saxon, secretary to Hoover, said.

Hoover, who has been at his writing desk for about a year, will survey the situation of human liberty throughout the world. He will discuss Fascism, Socialism, Communism, regimentation and other systems in the world and their status in the various countries.

ROOSEVELT REFUSES TO LIFT NRA BAR ON HOME WORK

President Tells Woman Artificial Flower Code Would Be Ineffective If He Did.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, July 31.—President Roosevelt has ruled that, under provisions of the NRA code covering manufacture of artificial flowers, he is unable to help Mrs. Kathryn Budd of Brooklyn, whose home work was stopped recently by the Government.

John Hochfelder, attorney for Mrs. Budd, said last night he had sent a second appeal to the President. He said that if he failed to receive a reply this morning he would press proceedings in Federal Court to have the code declared unconstitutional. The case, filed some time ago, was set for today. It seeks to restrain NRA officials from interfering with Mrs. Budd.

"I sent a radiogram to the President at Honolulu last Friday," the lawyer said. "Today I received a reply through Col. Martin H. McIntyre, the President's chief secretary, in Washington. McIntyre's telegram said that Mr. Roosevelt had not considered the plight of women making flowers at home in signing the artificial flower code, but that if he had done so he undoubtedly would have acted the same, for the reason that a decision favoring home flower making would make the code ineffective."

"Believing it inconceivable that the President would deprive 500,000 women in the same plight as Mrs. Budd of their sole means of livelihood, I immediately sent a second radiogram to Mr. Roosevelt, asking for an immediate reply."

UNION WANTS VOICE IN GRANTING PERMITS

Employers Take Up Mediators' Plan—Fight 'Between Recovery and Chiselers,' Says Governor.

By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 31.—Six thousand trucks moved today under permission of the National Guard, and strike leaders made no move to carry out their threat to use force to stop the vehicles.

Commercial transportation was nearer normal than it has been at any time since the National Guard was placed in control of the city last week. Adjutant-General E. A. Welch announced beer and wholesale grocery trucks could operate.

William Brown, president of Union No. 574, had demanded of Gov. Floyd B. Olson that all trucks be halted for 48 hours, starting today, to allow strike leaders and the National Guard to issue jointly new permits for vehicles.

Employers Consider Proposals.
Prospective settlement of the controversy, in which the drivers demand higher wages and wider union recognition, still was uncertain as the employers' advisory committee conferred secretly over the latest proposals of the Rev. Francis X. H. Dunnigan, Federal mediator.

One man was killed and four others were injured today when a National Guard squad car, running through a traffic signal to where it was stuck, crashed into a small sedan.

Three troopers were hurt. Carl Wallin, driver of the sedan, was sent to a hospital with a skull injury and internal injuries.

Statement by Governor.
Gov. Olson issued a statement saying the truck drivers' strike represents "the struggle between recovery and the chiselers." He added: "I shall expect every employer in the city who moves merchandise by truck to pay the wage scale determined by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Commission. It is a fair wage scale, for those affected by their proposal."

VON HINDENBURG REPORTED TO BE SLOWLY SINKING

Members of German President's Family Called to Bedside at Estate Near Neudeck.

SUFFERING FROM OLD AILMENTS

Legs Said to Be Paralyzed—Little Hope Held by Doctors Due to Advanced Age.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEUDECK, Germany, July 31.—President Paul von Hindenburg, Field Marshal of Germany and the nation's most popular hero in the World War, was reported to be slowly sinking this afternoon and his physicians feared the worst.

Members of the President's immediate family assembled at his bedside at the Hindenburg estate three miles from Neudeck. They included Von Hindenburg's son, Col. Oscar von Hindenburg, and the latter's wife and the President's two daughters, Frau von Brochhausen and Frau von Fentz.

Only a short while before—12:25 p. m.—Von Hindenburg's physicians had issued a reassuring bulletin, although they admitted the President's condition was causing grave anxiety because of his advanced age. He is 88 years old.

The 12:55 bulletin read: "The President took a brief nap outside his bed this morning. At this time he spoke freely to members of his entourage. After he returned to bed he fell quietly asleep. He has no fever. His pulse is strong and increasing in beats."

Takes Nourishment.
The physicians issued the following bulletin at 5:15 p. m.: "There is no change in the President's condition, at least no deterioration. He took a little nourishment at noon. No fever. Pulse satisfactory."

Von Hindenburg has been suffering from an old disorder of the prostate gland for several months, and has remained at his estate. He also is suffering from asthmatic attacks and digestive troubles and is partly paralyzed in the legs.

Despite his illness he has continued to play an active part in politics. Only yesterday he received several callers whose identity was not revealed, but today all visitors were halted at the entrance to the estate.

VIENNA, July 31.—They hanged their first Nazis in Austria today. Planetta and Holzweber went to the gallows in the County Court and paid the penalty for the death of Dollfuss.

There was nothing humane about the way the Nazis killed Dollfuss. They let him bleed to death.

But there is nothing very tender about the way they hang people in Austria, either. Their gallows has no trap. It merely consists of a rope running through a pulley.

The condemned man climbs on a little stepladder. The hangman puts a rope around his neck and pulls it tight. Then they kick the ladder out from under him.

In accordance with an old Austrian custom the hangman's two assistants pull at the condemned man's body while the hangman pulls at the rope.

PUTSCH LEADER AND SLAYER DIE THREE HOURS AFTER CONVICTION

At End, Franz Holzweber Shouts "I Die for Germany: Heil Hitler!" — Otto Planetta Says Only "Heil Hitler."

FIRST NAZIS TO GET DEATH SENTENCE

At Court-Martial Former Army Sergeant Had Said He Did Not Mean to Kill Dollfuss and Asked for Forgiveness.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)
VIENNA, July 31.—Two Nazis accused of high treason in the killing of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss were hanged this afternoon. They had been convicted three hours before by a court-martial. They were Otto Planetta, a former army sergeant, and Franz Holzweber. A plea by their counsel for clemency was rejected.

Immediately after the execution, an official account was issued. It said that after the sentence of death was read to him as he stood on the gallows, Holzweber shouted: "I die for Germany; heil Hitler!"

Planetta, according to this account, shouted only: "Heil Hitler!" Planetta said in the course of the trial that he fired the fatal shot, adding: "I did not mean to kill the Chancellor. I am sorry."

Holzweber was charged with leading the Nazi putsch in which the Chancellor was slain.

Oddly enough, the death sentences passed today for the first made by an Austrian court against Nazis despite the fact that Dollfuss decreed death months ago against persons found guilty of seditious activities. Several Socialists were executed under these decrees but the death sentence was never passed against Nazi while Dollfuss was alive.

Planetta was actually condemned to death for two reasons. High treason and the murder of Dollfuss as well.

The defense counsel, in his closing plea, stressed Dollfuss' dying words, as testified to by Maj. Emil Fey, who quipped him as saying: "Avoid further bloodshed. Rintelen must make peace."

Raising his voice, the defense counsel cried: "That was Chancellor Dollfuss' real last will and testament."

For "Love of Country."
The attorney told the court that armed rebellions unfortunately usually bring death to someone "but those who participate in them cannot be called bandits and common murderers as these defendants today have been called. It is customary to call such persons rebels."

The final moments of the court-martial, when Dollfuss' slayer was asked if he had any last word, were tense.

The stuffy, small courtroom was overcrowded with newspaper men, soldiers, police and court attaches. All suddenly became silent.

"No Cowardly Murderer."
Planetta rose from his seat between two armed wardens. He clicked his heels and straightened his shoulders as he snapped into attention.

"I don't know," he said in a loud, clear voice, "how many hours I have to live, but before I go, I should like to say this: 'I am no cowardly murderer. But what I did I did out of love for my country.'"

"But I also want to say this: I did not mean to kill Chancellor Dollfuss and for that reason I am sorry."

"And for that I beg forgiveness."

DESIRE FOR LONE HAND IN AUSTRIA DENIED BY ITALY

Spokesman Says Government Prefers United Action If Intervention Becomes Necessary.

REPLY TO CRITICISM FROM JUGO-SLAVIA

Rome Views Situation With 'Complete Calm But Constant Watchfulness'—Soft Pedal on Press.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, July 31.—A Government spokesman said today that Italy was not perturbed by a statement from Belgrade that if Italy intervened in Austria, Jugoslavia would step in also.

The spokesman said that it had not been Italy's idea to play a lone hand in the Austrian situation and that Italy would, in fact, prefer united action. He said that Italy's only interest was to protect the independence of Austria and that if other nations joined in helping to ward this end, so much the better.

The same spokesman said a report that Premier Mussolini had telephoned Chancellor Hitler, warning him to cease Nazi activity in Austria, was not true.

The Government, he said, now views the Austrian situation with complete calm but constant watchfulness.

The Italian press put the soft pedal on references to Germany. It apparently was reflecting the desire of the Government. Comment was in marked moderation to the bitter remarks of the past few days.

Many of the thousands of Italian troops concentrated at the Austrian frontier also are near the Jugoslavian border. Many Nazi refugees have fled into Jugoslavia from Austria.

Italian forces are concentrated near Fiume and Val di Romano, facing Jugoslavia.

Rumors were current here that Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia are urging France to try to prevent possible intervention by the Italian army alone.

Italian officials have repeated their stand that no further diplomatic steps are necessary if intervention should be decided on.

Jugo-Slavia Resents Italy's Role as Guarantor of Austrian Independence.

By the Associated Press.
BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, July 31.—Official quarters said today that the question of Austrian independence is not a matter for the great Powers alone, but is of equal concern to Austria's neighbors who, they believe, should be consulted relative to any steps taken.

It was stated that the Jugo-Slav Government resents the idea of Italy playing a lone hand in guaranteeing Austria's independence and that Jugo-Slavia's attitude with reference to Austria is that Italy cannot act alone.

Already, hundreds of Nazi fighters from Austria have been driven over the Jugo-Slav border and have been interned in this country.

JUDGE TRUMAN ON THE BONUS

Candidate for Payment "As Soon As Possible."

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 31.—Payment of the soldiers' bonus "as soon as possible" was advocated here last night by Judge Harry S. Truman of Independence in a campaign speech in furtherance of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate. Truman spoke in front of the steps at the State Capitol to an audience which included many State officials and employees.

"The Federal Government has been aiding the farmer and the business man, and I believe the veterans of the World War should receive due compensation just as soon as possible," he declared. After praising the administration of President Roosevelt, Truman stated that if he were elected, he would "go with the President to the end of the New Deal."

Two Nazis Are Put to Death Three Hours After Conviction

Minister of Security—stood up in his shabby, gray prison uniform. He said: "The last words I heard the dying Chancellor speak," said Fey, "were 'Hitler must make peace.'"

"He first had asked me to see that his family was cared for, then he said 'let there be no more bloodshed.' A little later he said 'Hitler must make peace.' Those were the last words I heard him say; for just then I was taken from the room and did not see him again alive."

Fey appeared on the balcony of the chancellery during the putsch several times to order government forces outside not to attack.

Paper Omits Testimony.
The official newspaper Wiener Zeitung omitted this part of Fey's testimony from its account of the putsch. He is now Minister of Security in the Schuschnigg Government.

Planetta and Holzweber, tanned and healthy looking despite reports the Nazis prisoners had been mistreated, testified calmly.

Fey, contradicting a recent official explanation, said the Nazis had been promised safe conduct to Germany if they surrendered and the promise was made with full knowledge that Dollfuss was dead.

The government justified itself for revoking the agreement on the ground of Dollfuss' death.

Other witnesses disagreed with Fey on this point.

"We learned only afterwards that Dollfuss had been wounded," said Karl Karwinsky, Secretary of State and Public Security.

Planetta said he confessed as the result of a promise all the putschists would be freed if the man who had shot Dollfuss would admit this. Government witnesses denied this.

A striking feature of Holzweber's testimony came when he said that "the real leader" of the putsch from whom he received the command to capture Dollfuss failed to show up after the building was taken to tell him what move to make next.

Leader's Name Withheld.
Stopping dramatically as he addressed the judges, he turned to Fey and asked him to corroborate that statement.

"Didn't I tell you our leader had failed to appear and didn't I ask you to help us bring the whole thing to an end peacefully?" He asked Fey.

Then Fey, addressing the court, said: "What this man says is true." The leader who ran away from the putsch was "a man in civilian dress known to us by several names but from whom we received instructions regularly," Holzweber said.

"In other words," interrupted the presiding judge, "you don't want to tell us."

STORM TROOPS CALLED BACK TO DUTY IN GERMANY

Chief of Staff Lutz Says "With Traitors Eliminated" They Must Return to Old Course.

By the Associated Press.
MUNICH, July 31.—After a conference with Chancellor Hitler, Viktor Lutz, chief of staff of the Nazi storm troops, announced today that his storm troops would return to duty tomorrow after a month's holiday.

His announcement read: "To the storm troops: On Aug. 1, storm troops leave ends and full activity again starts. Simultaneously all restrictions on connection with the vacation will be lifted such as the work of staffs, the wearing of uniforms, etc."

"Thus the storm troops organization again will make its complete reappearance before the people, devoting itself with determination to the front line task but in a different spirit from that pressed by now eliminated traitors in the vacation."

"The storm troop body will and must return to the old course which made it big and strong and from which it was artificially diverted against its will. Simplicity and economy in conduct in the outside service and close comradeship with the people's movement are the fundamental storm troop principles which join it to the Fuehrer (Hitler) and make it a powerful instrument of the German revolution."

"Long live the Fuehrer! Long live Germany!"

"Chief of Staff Lutz." It was in the "blood purge" of June 30 that Capt. Ernst Roehm, then chief of staff, together with other minor storm troop leaders met death under the accusation of being a traitor just as the vacation, now closing, began. For the last month, the storm troops, who are permitted to wear brown uniforms, have been missing from the streets.

Chancellor at his request by telephone.

The Minister, Kurt Rieth, was reluctant to enter the building as requested by the putschists, Fey said. But they insisted they would not surrender unless the Austrian Government justified itself for revoking the agreement on the ground of Dollfuss' death.

Other witnesses disagreed with Fey on this point.

"We learned only afterwards that Dollfuss had been wounded," said Karl Karwinsky, Secretary of State and Public Security.

Planetta said he confessed as the result of a promise all the putschists would be freed if the man who had shot Dollfuss would admit this. Government witnesses denied this.

PRESIDENT TO INSPECT POWER PROJECTS IN THE NORTHWEST

Will Visit Bonneville Dam in Oregon and Grand Coulee in Washington.

By the Associated Press.
ABOARD THE CRUISER NEW ORLEANS, en route with President Roosevelt, July 31.—President Roosevelt steered a course across the Pacific today for the Northwest United States to make a personal inspection of power and navigation control projects.

Proceeding straight from the coast upon his departure from Portland, Ore., Friday, the President will go to Bonneville Dam and power project in Eastern Oregon. From there he will go to the Grand Coulee project in Washington, base of the gigantic Columbia River power and irrigation development.

Traveling almost due northeast, Roosevelt felt the difference in the weather today as his cruisers sped away from the tropical waters where they have been during most of his extensive tour of American territories and possessions.

The President has not passed an other ship along his route from the Panama Canal to the Hawaiian Islands and again on his return to the States.

POPULAR BLUFF (Mo.), July 31.—Contending that by signing a NRA code he had violated the State anti-trust laws, Grover W. Dalton, president of the Dalton-Baldwin Furniture Co., has refused to sign an anti-trust affidavit, as required each year of all Missouri corporations.

Dalton returned the affidavit unsigned to Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown at Jefferson City. "If we sign an affidavit, it will mean that we are sending the Blue Eagle back to Washington," Dalton said. "If we sign the affidavit and keep our Blue Eagle, then we are guilty of perjury."

tration records were moved from the City Hall across the street yesterday in defiance of State law. He suggested that both the Walmsey and Long-factions maintain watchfulness of the situation "night and day" until the primary election.

Mayor Walmsey said the removal of the registration office across the street had been accomplished "in the name of the law."

He said that when the Long-appointed registrar, R. J. Gregory, occupied his new office today, there was a "joyous celebration, two kegs of beer being served."

"In my opinion, this proclamation is the most ridiculous and absurd thing that has transpired in the entire opera bouffe that has been staged by the Mad Hatter," Walmsey said. "This is just another attempt to intimidate the voters of the city of New Orleans who have refused to be dominated by Huey Long. I can assure the people of New Orleans that, militia or no militia, the people of New Orleans will be maintained in New Orleans at all cost."

"And that now, if the Adjutant-General attempts to perpetuate or permit any of the illegal dastardly acts that have been attempted in the registration office on the order of Long before the last city election, we will see to it that attention of the proper authorities is called to it."

BELGIAN ENVOY TO U.S. DIES AFTER OPERATION

Paul May, Long in Diplomatic Service, Succumbs in Hospital at Washington.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 31.—Paul May, Belgian Ambassador to the United States, died last night at Emergency Hospital here after an abdominal operation. He was 61 years old.

He was taken to the hospital a week ago, suffering from a stomach complaint that had been aggravated by the extreme heat. Physicians decided on an operation for gallstones last Saturday.

His Diplomatic Career.

M. May entered the diplomatic service in 1896 and was attached to the Foreign Office at Brussels. Successively he served in the foreign services in the United States, Japan, China, England, Turkey, Mexico, Sweden, Finland and Brazil, culminating his career by becoming Ambassador to the United States in December, 1930. He presented his credentials to the President at Washington in April, 1931.

He received his early education from private tutors and later studied at the University of Brussels and at Oxford. He entered the diplomatic service shortly after receiving the degree of doctor of civil law and political science at the University of Brussels.

One of the Ambassador's brothers, Adolphe May, who died during the World War, was a member of the Belgian Parliament and his only other brother holds an eminent position in the financial world.

From 1912 to 1914 M. May was Minister to Mexico and at the outbreak of the World War he was recalled to London on special mission. During the war he performed conspicuous service in assisting Belgian refugees.

The Ambassador is survived by his widow and three children. The eldest child is about 23 years old and the youngest 17.

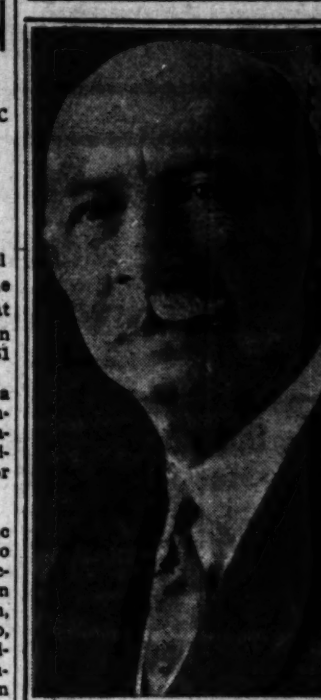

The State Department announced today that a naval cruiser would carry the body of the Ambassador back to Belgium for burial.

On hearing news of M. May's death, President Roosevelt, on board the U. S. S. Houston, asked Secretary of State Hull to convey his sympathy to the Ambassador's family.

Hull, who said he felt he had lost a great personal friend, instructed the American Charge d'Affaires at Brussels to convey the United States' sorrow and sense of great loss to the Belgian Government.

A private funeral will be held here Thursday, when the body will be placed on an artillery caisson for transfer from the Belgian Embassy to Arlington National Cemetery.

Muskogee Policemen Wound and Capture Fugitive Who Fled in Taxicab.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., July 31.—A 70-mile taxicab dash for freedom ended in the capture and serious wounding of Charlie Martin, 38-year-old convicted robber, who shot down two Muskogee policemen in a fight last night.

Patrolman Ed Hensley, 45, and his fellow officer, Billy Guy, 45, were wounded severely.

Martin fled in a taxicab late yesterday from the penitentiary at McAlester, where he was serving a 30-year sentence.

The Muskogee officers halted the taxicab on a residential street. Martin, after being forced to get out of the cab, seized Guy's pistol, struck him on the head and opened fire on Hensley. The latter returned the fire.

TERRY DRUGGAN FREED FROM ATLANTA PRISON

Chicago Brewery Operator of Prohibition Days Served Term on Tax Charge.

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—Terry Druggan, millionaire brewery operator in Chicago during prohibition days, who was sentenced to serve 30 months in prison for violating Federal income tax laws, was released from the Federal penitentiary here last Friday, A. C. Alderholt, Warden, said yesterday. Druggan was brought to Atlanta about a year ago from Leavenworth.

Inquiry in Chicago showed there were no other charges pending against Druggan. He was sentenced with Frank Lake, a brewery partner, who was freed some time ago. Lake's sentence was 18 months.

Druggan, before he was brought here from Leavenworth, was the center of a prison scandal. It was alleged he absented himself from his cell to visit women friends.

Druggan was released 30 days before the expiration of his term. All of his time off for good behavior was not deducted. Warden Alderholt said that the 30-month sentence carried a normal good-behavior time of 180 days. Druggan lost 150 days of that time. He paid a fine of $544.54 before he was released.

While Druggan, Lake and Ralph Capone are now at liberty, Al Capone, brother of Ralph and leader of Chicago gangsters, remains in prison here. Several attempts to obtain his release have failed and he still has a number of years to serve. Al and Ralph Capone also were sent to prison on income tax convictions.

Tennessee Valley Experiment Extended to Other Parts of the Nation.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The Electric Home and Farm authority yesterday prepared to let the whole nation buy low cost refrigerators, stoves and other electrical appliances developed as a result of the Tennessee Valley experiment.

David Lilienthal, EHFA president, announced that the refrigerators containing about four cubic feet of food storage space and selling for $70 to $80 would be marketed throughout the country at the same price prevailing in the Tennessee Valley. Officials added that stoves selling for $77 and hot-water heaters costing $62.60 would be put on the market soon with the approval of the authority.

BONDS ISSUED WITHOUT ELECTION HELD INVALID

Supreme Court Rules Against Blue Springs (Mo.) Municipal Waterworks Project.

By the Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 31.—An issue of $80,000 in revenue bonds authorized by the City Council of Blue Springs, Jackson County, for a municipal waterworks was declared invalid by the Supreme Court on June 26, because the bond issue had not been submitted to voters of the town, in an election, for approval.

Blue Springs, a fourth-class city of 706 population, had expected to supplement the $80,000 bond issue with an outright grant of $24,000 of Federal Public Works Administration funds. The town has no waterworks at present.

Friendly Test Suit.
The case, a friendly proceeding, was instituted largely to obtain a ruling on whether smaller cities of Missouri could issue revenue bonds, payable out of earnings, for construction of municipally owned public utilities. This question was not passed on, however, the decision turning on failure of the City Council to submit the bond issue to voters in an election, as required by law.

Under constitutional and statutory provisions, bonds issued by smaller cities of the State must be retired through taxation on property. A two-thirds majority is required, in an election, for approval of such an issue. Cities of more than 75,000 population are authorized by the Constitution to issue revenue bonds for construction of public utilities, payable only out of plant revenues, by a four-sevenths majority in an election.

Judge Frank E. Atwood, who wrote the opinion, held that failure of the Blue Springs Council to comply with the election requirement invalidated the bonds. Because of this, he said, it was not necessary for the Court to pass on other points raised in the case. Comment of Judge Atwood.

"Assuming, without deciding, that relator (Blue Springs) could issue 'public utility' or 'revenue' bonds with the statutory assent of two-thirds of its inhabitants," Judge Atwood said, "why does the relator seek to evade such a submission of the question?" "An undertaking on the part of the city to maintain and operate such a utility necessarily entails the hazard of some loss, direct or indirect, of the general revenue," Judge Atwood said. "The uniform legislative policy of this State, evidenced by the Constitution and statutes, is that assent thereto of the inhabitants of the city at an election held for that purpose, is essential."

REPUBLIC STEEL TENTATIVELY SETTLES WITH TIN WORKERS

Union Members to Return for Week at Warren and Niles, O., Pending Final Agreement.
WARREN, O., July 31.—The controversy between the Republic Steel Corporation and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, here and at Niles, O., was settled tentatively yesterday, and the company announced it would reopen 13 tinplate mills in this vicinity.

Officers of the Trumbull Lodge of the Amalgamated said the tin workers would return to their jobs for one week, pending efforts to adjust details of an accord with the company reached under mediation of the steel industry's Labor Relations Board. At Moline, Ill., company workers were still at odds with the operators.

COAL OPERATORS SEEK HIGHER FUEL OIL PRICE

They Make Their Plea at Hearing On Proposed Lower Rates.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 31.—Contending that low fuel oil prices have been "raising havoc" with the coal industry, a representative of the National Coal Association yesterday urged a further advance in oil prices at a hearing before the Petroleum Administrative Board.

The hearing was ordered by Secretary of the Interior Ickes on the basis of complaints from consumers that fuel oil prices had been boosted unduly.

Dr. Ruth W. Ayres of the NRA Consumers' Advisory Board quickly came back at Willett with a warning that "coal interests are playing with fire in suggesting that competition between industries be regulated by the Government."

Earlier, Dr. Ayres contended before the board that a price increase of from 200 to 400 per cent in fuel oil from June, 1933, to June, 1934, was unjustified. Prices at refineries have gone up 114 per cent, she said, and are 127 per cent over their all-time low.

After reading many complaints from consumers, asserting that present prices "spell disaster," look like a "stitch up," or contain a hint of monopoly, Dr. Ayres said: "Either the price must come down or the industry must show conclusively that the price is indispensable to recovery of the industry."

The Oil Administration has power to fix prices under the oil code, but has not yet invoked it. Spokesmen for the Navy, for steamship operators and the railroads followed Dr. Ayres in voicing protests. A measure of support for their arguments likewise came from independent fuel oil dealers and oil burner concerns.

No Defense From Oil Men.
Oil companies did not come forward to defend their prices, but it was announced an extensive brief would be filed on their behalf by the industry's planning and co-ordination committee.

Conceding that the coal industry is in a better position than for many years, Willett contended nevertheless that there was a "very great power, natural gas and fuel oil, cloud on the horizon" in the form "which have displaced hundreds of millions of tons of coal."

Hottest July in St. Louis Since 1901 and Possibly in 97 Years

Last Day to Decide—Week Averaging 95.2
Set a Record, as Did High Reading of 110.2 and Night Averaging 94.2.

Whether this July will be as hot as any on record in St. Louis is a matter for hair-splitting after tonight's temperatures have been given weight in the averages, but that it has been unequalled in its devastating effect there is little reason to doubt.

The average temperature for the month, exclusive of today, was 87.4 degrees, precisely the average for July, 1901, the hottest in the 97 years for which the Weather Bureau has records. Today's temperatures, Forecaster Nunn thought, were likely to lower the average for the month by about 1.4 of a degree.

It may be said now, however, that this July gave St. Louis the hottest week ever recorded, with an average temperature of 95.2 from the 19th to the 25th; the hottest day on record, the 24th, with a maximum of 110.2, which was followed by the hottest night on record, with an average temperature of 94.2.

July weather, following a June which set a new record for heat, brought death from heat exhaustion to 265 persons in and near St. Louis, damaged the crops of St. Louis County farmers about $3,000,000, caused flower gardens to wilt, leaves to curl and fall and lawns to dry up.

Worst Is Over, Nunn Believes. With July, the worst of the summer has passed, in the opinion of Nunn. August, he said, has been acquiring a good reputation in recent years. With the days getting shorter, cooler weather is indicated, particularly for the last half of the month, and August nights, unlike the July nights which drove many persons to the parks and other out-of-door sleeping places, should be comfortably cool.

The record of daily maximum and minimum temperatures for July shows 13 days when the maximum was 100 or higher, and only four when it was less than 90. There were nine nights when the minimum temperature did not fall below 80. The record:

Date	Maximum	Minimum
July 1	95	75
July 2	100	78
July 3	105	78
July 4	99	79
July 5	99	78
July 6	98	77
July 7	90	68
July 8	90	68
July 9	92	70
July 10	94	72
July 11	99	72
July 12	99	77
July 13	104	82
July 14	104	82
July 15	102	79
July 16	97	71
July 17	97	71
July 18	103	78
July 19	102	80
July 20	109	83
July 21	103	82
July 22	103	83
July 23	109	84
July 24	110.2	87
July 25	108	85
July 26	94	80
July 27	86	71
July 28	90	71
July 29	97	72
July 30	88	75

Relative Humidity Below Normal. As is usual in periods of excessively high temperatures, the relative humidity was low, the average at noon during the hottest week being 27, compared with a normal of 50 for the month. The lower humidity made the heat less oppressive. A higher humidity, Nunn said, would have tended to lower the temperature, but would only have made the weather more disagreeable.

The average temperature for the month was 87.5, 8.7 degrees above normal, and the average night temperature, from 8 p. m. until 5 a. m., was 83.3 degrees, 7.4 degrees above normal. These warm nights followed those of June, which averaged 77.9, or 6.3 above normal. The warmest night in June was that of the 27th-28th, which averaged 86.9. Five June days with maximum temperatures of 100 or higher, added to the 13 in July, give a total of 18 for the season, equalling the record.

Forecaster Nunn said there was no way of telling what caused the unusually high temperatures of July. The immediate cause was a "stagnation" of areas of high and low atmospheric pressure over the continent, he said, but what caused that condition is not known. With no strong high or low pressure areas developing, and the sun beating down 14 or 15 hours a day, the heat "built up." There were no winds to bring moisture from the Gulf or the Atlantic, which might have brought rain and cooler temperatures. The relief which came late in the month, Nunn said, was caused by a high-pressure area in the Northwest, which moved air from the polar regions down into the Mississippi Valley.

Not Driest July on Record. Rain fell in measurable amounts on the 11th, 17th and 27th, and there were traces on six other days, but the total for the month was but .87 of an inch, an exceptionally light fall, but not a record. The driest July on record was that of 1930, when the precipitation was but .25 of an inch.

The rain of the 27th, which broke the last hot spell of the month, "just scratched the surface," Nunn said, and was not enough to be of any material benefit. Reflecting the lack of rainfall in this and earlier months, the Mississippi is at its lowest stage on record for this time of the year, 3 of a foot below zero. The previous record was a stage of 2 feet in July, 1931, and the average for the month is 17.3 feet.

County Farm Agent Oscar Meier said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that St. Louis County farmers who in a good year get about $4,500,000 for their crops, this year would get only $2,500,000 or $3,000,000. He estimated the corn yield at 15 to 20 per cent of normal; potatoes, 30 per cent; hay, 45 per cent; tomatoes, 50 per cent; apples, 60 per cent; general garden vegetables, 20 to 25 per cent, and peaches, 5 per cent (owing chiefly to a freeze last spring).

An exception is the wheat crop, which Meier said would be between 450,000 and 500,000 bushels, compared with a normal harvest of between 350,000 and 400,000 bushels. Much of the wheat was harvested before the worst effects of the drought were felt, he said, and many farmers who did not plant that crop in other years did so this year, hoping for higher prices because of the Government's acreage reduction program.

France Decorates Leviathan Captain. NEW YORK, July 31.—In recognition of his maritime record, Capt. A. B. Randall of the liner Leviathan has received the French Government's Legion of Honor decoration at Havre, France, the United States Lines announced. Capt. Randall, who is commander of the United States Lines fleet, was honored particularly for his work as commander of convoy for the United States merchant marine during the World War.

RULES CITY PLANT SURPLUS IS FREE FOR OTHER USES

State Legal Department Says Revenue May Be
Diverted if Obligations
Are Protected.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 31.—Surplus earnings of a municipal water plant owned by a Missouri city of the third class may be transferred to other municipal uses, by city ordinance, if the transfer does not endanger ability of the city to meet interest and principal payments on any bonds outstanding against the plant, the Attorney-General's department ruled yesterday.

The opinion, by Assistant Attorney-General E. H. Miller, was issued to the City of Carthage at the request of city officials.

Carthage officials asked for the ruling on the ground that the city had about $38,000 in delinquent taxes outstanding, that many property owners would be unable to pay their taxes at the end of this year and that some relief could be afforded if surplus earnings of the municipal plant could be transferred to other municipal purposes.

Miller said there were no statutes or court decisions in Missouri specifically authorizing use of surplus revenue from municipally owned water plants for other municipal purposes, nor were there any express statutory prohibitions against such use.

No Approval Expressed.

"It must not be understood that we express any approval of such action by the city or its board in charge of the waterworks as would maintain water rates at a higher rate than necessary for the purpose of raising revenue for other purposes," Miller said, "in view of section 7675 (revised statutes of 1929) which provides that the rate shall be sufficiently high to raise money for certain named purposes, and does not include any purposes other than expense of maintenance, bond interest and retirement, but if the rates established by the City of Carthage or its duly authorized board are reasonable, and if they result in a surplus over the statutory requirements of section 7675, we find nothing in the statutes or decisions of this state prohibiting the use of a surplus for other municipal purposes."

Miller pointed out that the rights of owners of bonds outstanding against the municipal plant might be affected by such a transfer, since, by law, they had a first lien on revenues from such a plant.

"Of course," Miller said, "such holders only have a right to receive interest on the bonds fixed in such bonds, and to receive the principal upon the date or dates of maturity of such bonds, and if these payments were made according to the provisions in the bonds there would be no right of complaint by such bondholders."

Right of Bondholders.
"However, if there should be a failure to meet any of the interest or principal payments according to the terms of such bonds, the bondholders would have a right, based on contract, to bring an action for a diversion of property which was subject to their lien, and if such bondholders reasonably felt, even though at present there is no default, that there was a probability that such default would be caused in the event funds were diverted from the waterworks fund, such bondholders might be able to enjoin such diversion by an appropriate proceeding."

"It is our opinion that, assuming the water rates of the City of Carthage to be reasonable, any surplus income over and above the requirements of section 7675 could be transferred by ordinance from the waterworks fund and used by the city for other public municipal purposes, but that holders of bonds issued to pay for such waterworks system would have a cause of action for a disturbance of their prior lien on such funds if by such transfer and use interest or principal payments on such bonds were prevented or endangered."

About $30,000 in bonds still are outstanding from the $100,000 in bonds originally issued by Carthage for its city waterworks.

New Job for Herbert Hoover.

GETS 180 DAYS FOR BURNING GIRL, 8, 'TO MAKE HER GOOD'

Woman Sentenced at Los Angeles for Holding Daughter's Arm Over Flame.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—Mrs. Consuelo Aceledo was sentenced yesterday to serve 180 days in jail for holding one arm of her 8-year-old daughter over a flame.

The daughter, Aurora, fled from her mother and was found by neighbors hiding in a garage. Her arm was severely burned. The mother said she had sought "to make her a good girl."

The mother admitted striking the child in the face for supposedly stealing pennies, but denied she punished her daughter with fire. She pleaded guilty to the charge.

"If you are ever in court again on a charge like this," said Municipal Judge Joseph L. Call, "I'll send you to San Quentin Penitentiary."

JUDGE TELLS WHY HE JAILS REPORTERS

Says Court "Is Not Subjective to Promises of Confidence."

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ky., July 31.—Two Danville newspaper reporters who have gone to jail six times rather than disclose a news source to the Police Court had an associate today in facing contempt proceedings.

The reporters, Jack Durham and Wesley Carty, served six hours yesterday when they again declined to tell the court who gave them advance information about the hanging in effigy of State Representative Sterling Towles July 19. The hanging was a protest against Towles' vote for the State sales tax.

Victor Bodner, a University of Alabama medical student, clerking in a grocery store here during vacation, was the third witness in Police Judge Jay W. Harlan's inquiry to decline to answer questions about the placard that was fastened to the effigy. Bodner was given until Wednesday to reconsider his stand. Bodner's refusal was on the ground that his testimony might incriminate him.

Yesterday's sentences made a total of 36 hours each for the reporters and they continued in their stand that they would rather jail indefinitely than tell about advance information they got in confidence. They were told to return to court today and they face sentence again if they refuse to answer.

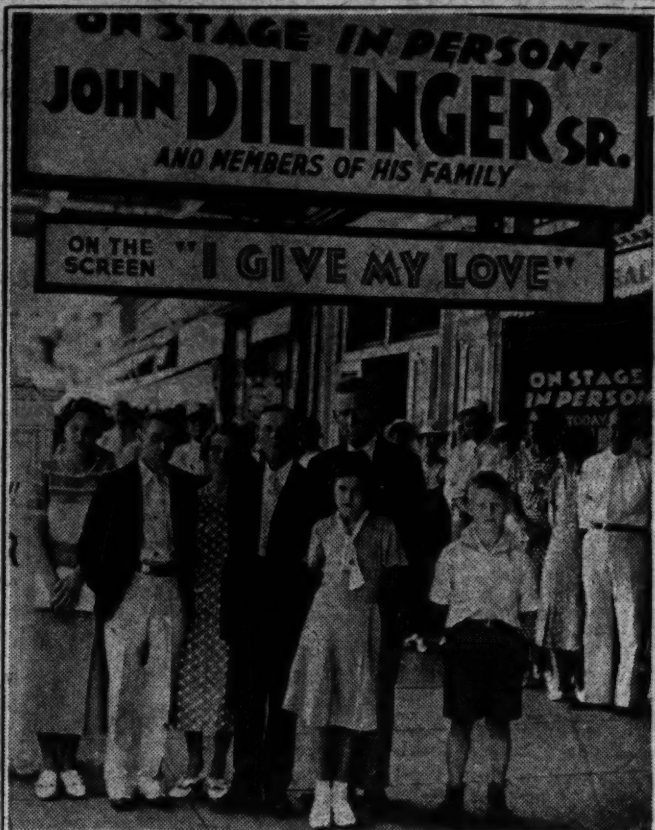

Judge Harlan in a statement said he had only kind feelings for the two reporters. He added he could only punish them for contempt. Under the law Judge Harlan could give them 12 hours each day in jail, but so far the limit he has imposed has been six. The statement said:

"It is regrettable that the court of inquiry being conducted by the Danville Police Court has been given so much publicity. Since such is the case, I feel that the public should be advised of the issues and principles involved and the attitude of the court.

"The inquiry was started by the court after the hanging in effigy of a public official of this county. Such an act, regardless of the official involved, is a breach of the peace and calculated to create strife and the resulting evils.

"Twenty-five or 30 witnesses have been summoned into court and inquired of. Only two so far have refused to answer questions propounded to them. They based their refusal upon the ground that the information was given and evidence exhibited to them in confidence, and that because of their being connected with newspapers it was a privileged communication, and that they were further honor-bound to keep their word.

"The Court could not as a legal proposition sustain their position, and thereupon was forced to punish them for contempt. Their continued refusal and their further refusal to appeal from the decision of the Court's ruling is an admission upon their part that they feel that the said ruling is correct.

"I have respect for the conception of honor possessed by Messrs. Durham and Carty, but authority of the Court is not subjective to promises of confidence. If such were not the case law enforcement would be futile. I believe that the thinking people realize that their position is an absolute challenge to the authority of a court, they will agree that the supremacy of courts must be sustained. Contempt proceedings is the only method granted to the Court to enforce its authority.

"I have the kindest feeling for these young men, but if the Court should yield in this instance then the same privilege should be granted to all others in the future who refuse to disclose facts upon the grounds that the knowledge thereof was obtained in confidence. The situation can be solved by the parties, who have these young men bound in confidence, releasing them from their pledge.

"Defiance of constituted authority is a menace to law enforcement. It is my duty as a sworn public official to fulfill my duties with equality to all and anonymous letters or contemptuous editorial comments will not deter me in endeavoring to maintain the authority of the Court."

Never Has a Price So Low Bought Such High Quality in a Car So Smart

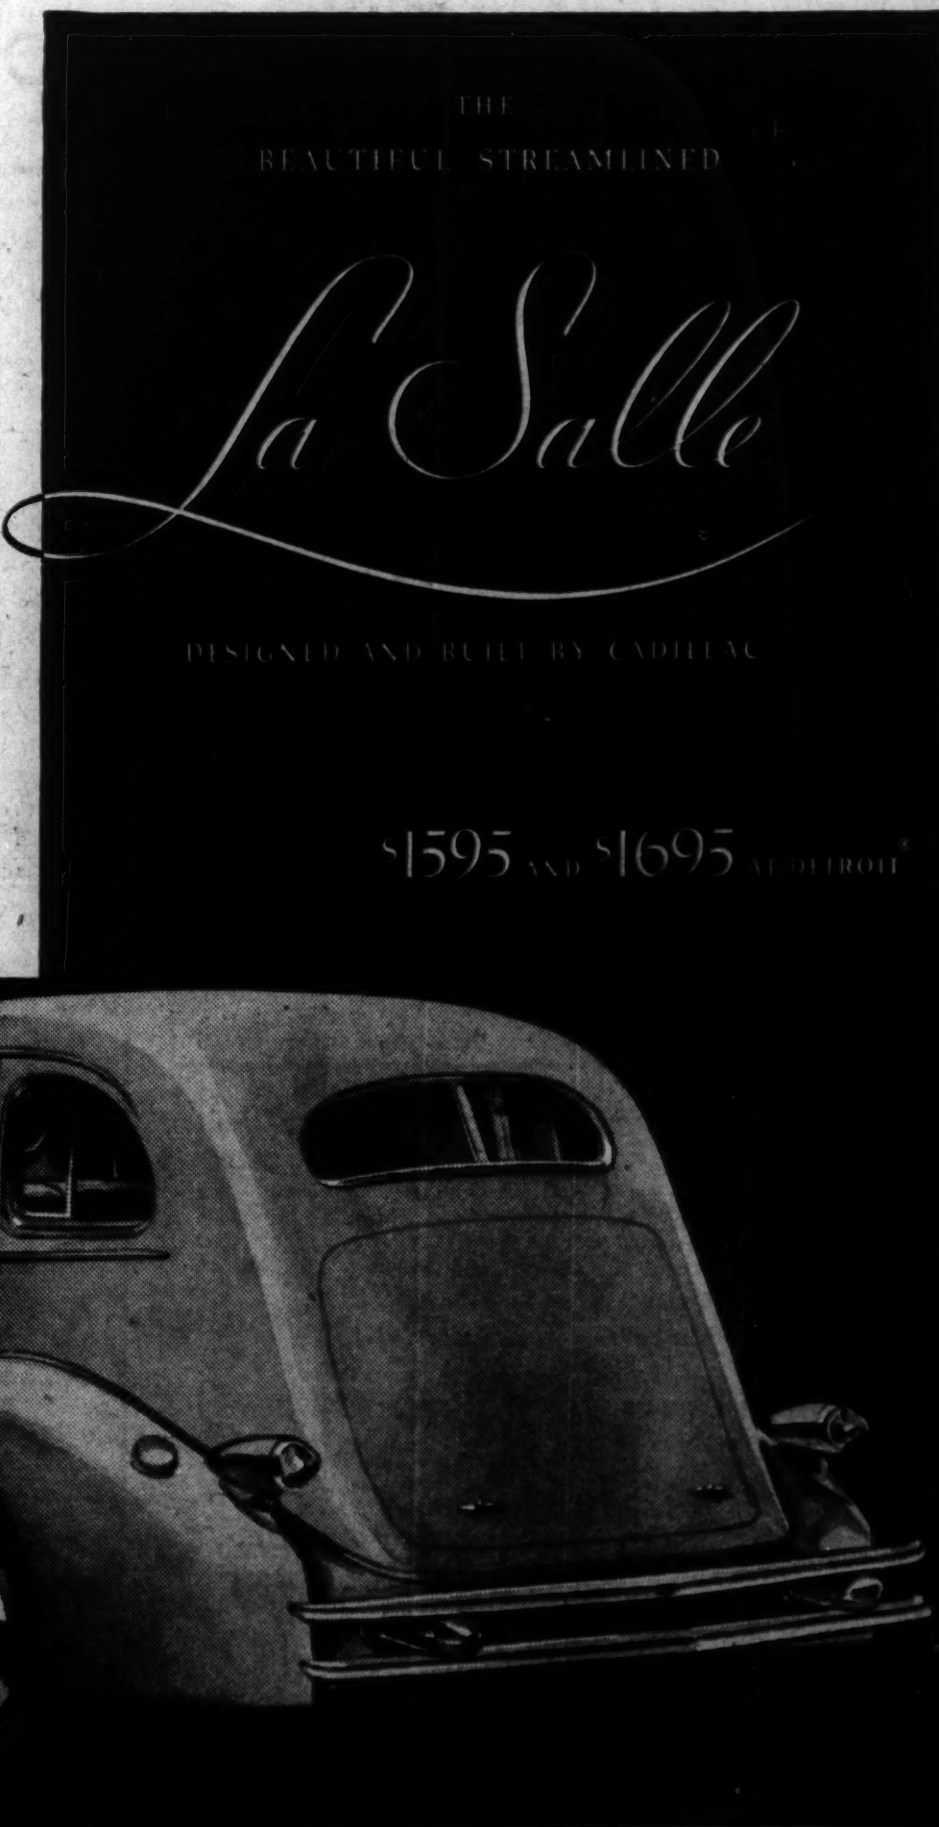

"You'll Relax in a La Salle"

IN THE showroom most automobiles are comfortable. At the start of a motor trip many automobiles are comfortable. But, after a 300 or 400 mile drive—very few cars merit the term "comfortable."

La Salle is built deliberately for your comfort. Its custom bodies by Fleetwood—with their form-tailored seat cushions and backs—and their many little refinements for your comfort and convenience—are masterpieces of body building. Cadillac-designed Knee-Action wheels make possible a degree of comfort never before known in motoring. It's the extra care that goes into the building of La Salle that makes possible your complete ease.

La Salle's performance, speed, comfort, ease of handling and beautiful streamlined bodies are attributes to be found only in a motor car of quality manufacture. Owners write to tell us that they are getting 13 to 15 miles to a gallon of gasoline... and with La Salle prices of $1595 and $1695 at Detroit—La Salle is not an expensive car. BROWNS REGAIN FIFTH PLACE BY DEFEATING WHITE SOX, 4-3

West Hits Home Run In Eighth, With One On Base, to Tie Score

By James M. Gould.

Baseball, in its long life, has scrambled many an adage, pulverized many a proverb. You know—old stuff—"the pitcher that went to the hill too often" and "it takes nine batters to make a team," etc. Yesterday, in the opener between the Browns and the White Sox, it was simple enough to coin another saying—to wit, viz. and i. e. "the team that gets the 'breaks' last, laughs last."

For, in very few games played here this season, did that mischievous personage Dame Fortune change sides so often or so impartially distribute her favors. At first all her smiles were for the White Sox and all her frowns for the Browns. But in the last part of the game, the fickle jade decided she had strung along long enough with the visitors and so came over and sat on the Browns' bench. The net result was that the Browns won a 4-3 victory and regained fifth place.

With Dick Coffman and Milt Gaston both pitching well, the score at the end of the fifth inning should have been 0-0. Instead, at that stage of the proceedings, the Sox were enjoying a three-run advantage, all three runs being unearned.

This "break" came in the fourth. Bonura, first up, had singled, but applying hit a picnic-bounce double play ball to Bejma. That young worthy made the stop but, as he was about to coast to second, dropped the ball. A sacrifice followed and the next man popped out. Catcher Madjeski hits a homer once in a blue moon, so Hornby ordered Coffman to toss him, which he did, thus filling the bases. Lady Luck had her arm around Gaston. He singled two runs over, another following when Swanson hit safely.

Lady Luck Vamps Our Browns. It was after this that the Browns decided Chicago had profited enough by her presence. The first Brownie run, in the sixth, was machine-made and earned; but Hornby's men went out in the seventh in order.

Then, to start the eighth, Cliff hit a long ball to left. Bock and Conlan, two Chicago outfielders, chased the drive and both tried to make the catch. Neither did, the men bumped each other, the ball fell out of the glove of Bock and Cliff reached third, the play being scored a triple.

Now, the percentage was against Sammy West, for he had made two of the Brownie runs. But he had another in his war chest and it happened to be a homer, the wallop tying the score.

But, the changeable lady wasn't through. In the last of the ninth, Hemley fouled out, but Bejma doubled and went to third, while Strange doubled. Here was a spot for Hornby, but, of course, Gaston walked the Rajah to set the stage for a possible double play.

Mellie, forced into this when Cliff went out with an injured arm, was the batter. The Chicago infield moved in and Mellie hit a "topped" grounder straight to Shortstop Appling. He had a beautiful chance for one of those "short-to-home-to-first" double plays, but too anxious to make the play at the plate, he overlooked the formality of getting the ball first, and it trickled through him, Bejma scoring the winning run.

Thus did the Browns take the opener and bounce back into fifth place.

Browns Deserved Victory. Perfectly played, the Browns should have won the game 2 to 0. With Coffman getting the shutout, he deserved to make it two scoreless games in a row over Chicago.

Today, George Blasholder will seek his eleventh victory of the year. George was seeking the same thing last Saturday, but after three innings decided that the Cleveland Indians were set against his getting it and retired with a defeat attached to his record.

For Chicago, Sam Jones, the 42-year-old right-hander who recently was presented with a saddle horse by admiring fans of his home town in Ohio, will pitch. He will not be allowed to use the horse.

A doubleheader tomorrow and a single game Thursday will conclude the series and home stay of the Browns, who Thursday night depart on a trip which embraces all seven other cities of the circuit.

THREE TIE FOR MEDAL HONORS IN GOLF EVENT AT COLORADO SPRINGS

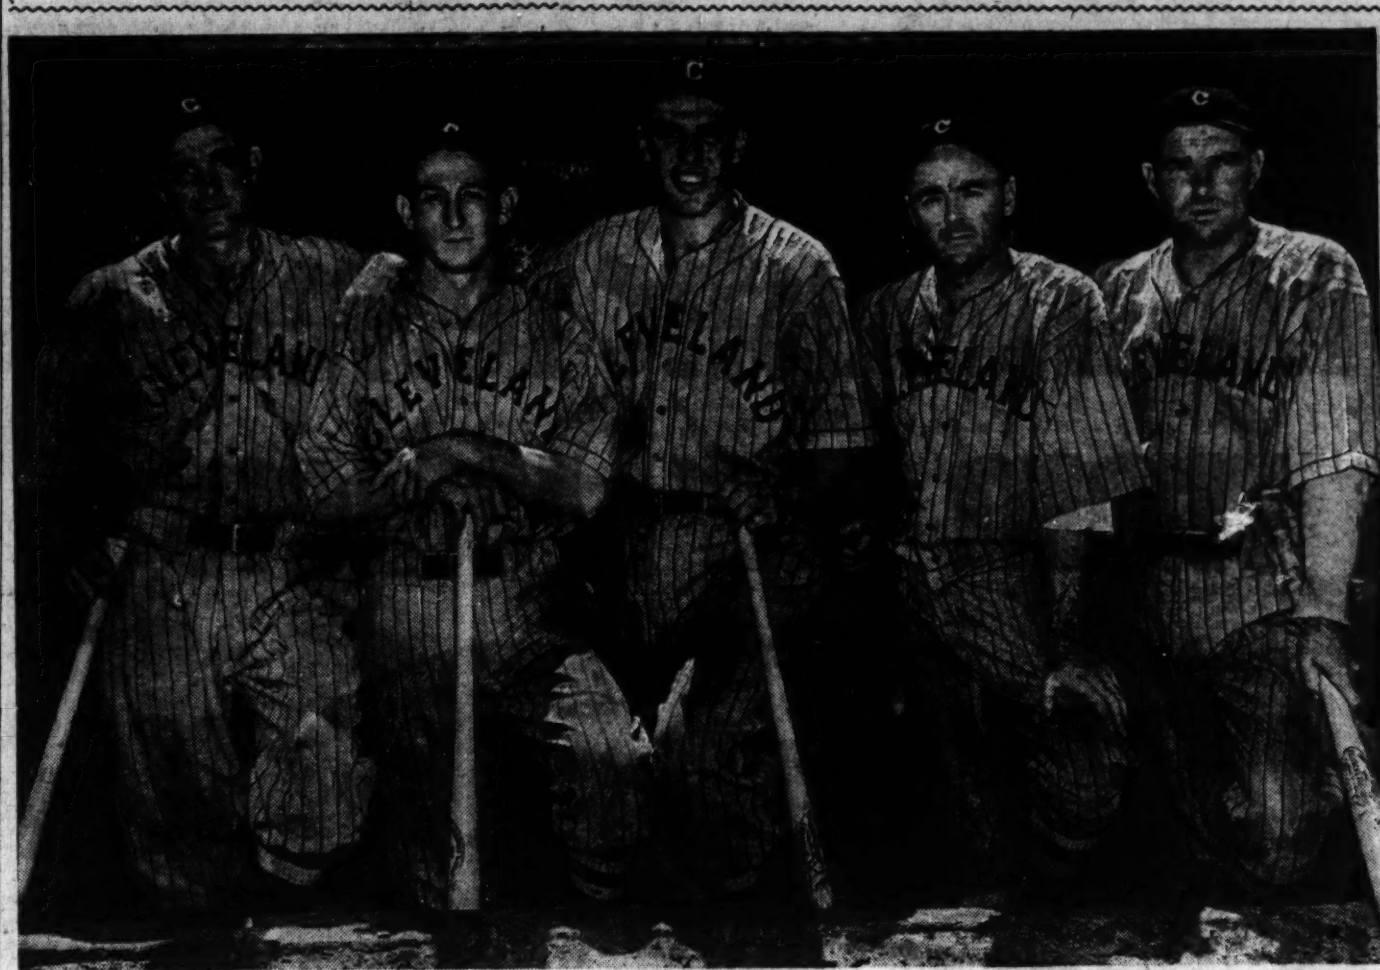

By the Associated Press. COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 31.—Harry Todd of Dallas, Western junior open champion and co-medalist in the 1934 Trans-Mississippi tournament; Milton Tootle, city champion of St. Joseph, Mo., and Jack Mallory of St. Louis, Mo., shot 74, four over par, to tie for medalist honors yesterday in the first day of qualifying for the annual Broadmoor invitation golf tournament.

The gallery favorite for medal honors was Johnny Dawson of Chicago, who played a practice round in 72.

ST. LOUIS BOY BEATEN IN WESTERN TENNIS

By the Associated Press. DELAWARE, Wis., July 31.—Al Shapiro of Baltimore yesterday defeated Howard Mayers of St. Louis, 6-4, 6-3, in the first round of the junior singles in the Western boys' and junior tennis tournament on the St. John's Military Academy courts here.

The Season's Biggest Surprise—Cleveland's Hard Hitting Infield Group

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the White Sox, thinks the Cleveland club is the best in the American League, and you can't blame him, after looking at the surprising batting averages of the Indians' infielders. Burnett, trophy, is the only one of the five who is hitting under .320. Left to right, the players are: Knickerbocker, .345; Hale, .322; Trasky, .335; Kamm, .326, and Burnett, .285.

That slump Jack Burns has been in continues. As is always the case, the slumper isn't having much luck. In the fourth inning, Burns hit a long drive to right. Swanson backed up against the wall, stuck up his glove to catch the ball, but he didn't. Then, before it touched the ground, the outfielder again made the catch. The Browns contended the ball hit the screen on the bounce from the glove, but that's all they did—just contended.

Zeke Bonura, who has hit 22 homers this season, was given only one chance to increase his four-bagger total by Coffman. Zeke struck out in the opening inning, three times he was up and passed.

And, speaking of "breaks," the Browns got another when Simmons, thrown out by Campbell while trying to score in the first, hurt his thumb and had to retire. Of late, he and Bonura have been doing most of the Chicago hitting.

Cliff also had to retire. Gaston, first up in the ninth, hit a hard drive toward third. The ball hit Cliff on the arm and bruised it badly, but he managed to get his man at first. Then he went out to score in the first, hurt his thumb and had to retire. Of late, he and Bonura have been doing most of the Chicago hitting.

There was an exhibition of alertness on the part of Hemley on Campbell's throw home that tipped Simmons in the opening inning. Simmons made a nice slide, but missed the plate. Also, Hemley failed to touch him as he went in. But Umpire Owens, seeing Hemley miss the touch and Simmons miss the plate, made no ruling. Hemley noted this, went after Simmons, touched him and heard the umpire say "out."

Dykes Playing Second. Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Sox and, for several years past, a third baseman, now is playing second, with Marty Hopkins, up again from the American Association, at third. The Browns, several years ago, were anxious to buy Hopkins, but the deal fell through. He appears a fine fielder, but not much of a hitter. He had a trial with the Phillies this spring.

Of the nine St. Louis hits, West got three and Bejma two. Strange's only safety was a double in the ninth, but it led to the winning of the game.

After the fifth Coffman pitched hitless ball. Only two of the Sox reached first, both on passes, and neither saw second.

Big Leagues Becoming Old Folks' Homes, Due To Minors 'Drying Up'

—JIMMY DYKES.

By Damon Kirby.

What chance has the manager of a tail-end team to build up his club under present conditions?

"Very little," promptly answers Jimmy Dykes, manager of the tail-end Chicago White Sox, whose team is furnishing the current opposition for the Browns at Sportsman's Park.

Has Mr. Dykes a remedy? Can minor league owner puts a $50,000 price tag on him or tells us to wait a couple of days.

"We are not interested in $50,000 minor league players, because none of them is worth that, today. But if we wait to do business the minor league owner gets in touch with one of the 'money' clubs, tells them that the White Sox are about to grab so and so, and the 'money' club boasts any figure we have tentatively set. It ain't right."

Dykes was full of the subject. He was asked to reiterate a statement that the young crop of ball players was below par.

Too Many Old Folks in Baseball. "Are they putrid? Are you asking me? I'm 37 years old. Do you think I could still be out there if there was a normal crop of youngsters coming up? Look at the other old fellows who are still in there regularly, and looking good, too. That's because there are no players in the first job as a big league manager, he says, when a player reaches 30, when a manager began to look around for someone to take his place."

Even though players are hard to find, Dykes is going to keep trying in his first job as a big league manager, he says, when a player reaches 30, when a manager began to look around for someone to take his place."

"One trouble with several of the young fellows on my club," he said in explaining the tail-end position, "is that they've never been on a winner. They don't know how to bear down. They are too used to getting beat and it comes too easy."

"Trailing by a couple of runs (and my young players are no exception), they are inclined to let their morale sag. Right then is when they should be bearing down with everything they've got. A fighting team can usually get some kind of a break for itself and win some of those close ones."

"Believe me," said Jimmy, "I for one don't enjoy standing out there in the sun and watching players run past me all afternoon. I want to get 'em out."

Play will continue in all divisions today with the possibility of the women's doubles title being decided. Margaret and Mercedes Tribout are scheduled to play Mrs. Bert Thompson and Leona Hahn in the final of that class.

Reds Obtain Coast League Catcher For 1935 Delivery

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—DAVID P. FLEMING, president of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League, said yesterday he had sold W. Gilthorpe Campbell, catcher, to the Cincinnati Reds. Delivery will be made at the close of the season.

Terms of the sale were not disclosed, but Fleming said the price was "right" and that Cincinnati had agreed to give the Angels two players acceptable to the local club.

A fine fielding catcher with a great throwing arm, Campbell also is one of the best left-hand hitters on the Los Angeles team. He went to the Chicago Cubs four years ago from Memphis, was turned over to Los Angeles at the end of the spring training season, returned to the Cubs that fall and again sent back here. Recalled again by the Cubs, he was sent to San Francisco, San Francisco traded him to the Angels for Win Ballou, pitcher.

4 CLUBS ENTER CREWS IN MUNY TITLE REGATTA

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS.—The four members of the Municipal Rowing Association have entered that organization's annual rowing regatta to be held next Sunday on the Mississippi River in front of the Western Rowing Club. Most of them have entered every event.

The clubs belonging to the association are the Western Rowing Club, the Central Rowing Club, the St. Louis Rowing Club and the North End Rowing Club.

Five men are entered in the singles event, but Nick Kausch of Central will be favored to retain his championship.

In the eight, four crews are entered, with Western and Central favored to fight it out for the title. Western recently defeated Central in the Central State rowing regatta.

"Klem's Only Mistake" To Be Replayed Today By Redbirds and Cubs

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Today is Bill Klem day at Wrigley field and the Cardinals and Cubs, before meeting in their regularly scheduled baseball game, will play two and one-sixth or possibly only one and four-sixths innings, to determine whether the only mistake that umpire's major league career (statistics by Bill Klem) played an important part in the contest in which the two teams engaged last July 2.

In that July game, with the bases filled, Chuck Klein hit an infield fly into the air and Klem, despite his wide experience, did not recognize it as an infield fly. He thought it was a sapodilla or perchance a kumquat.

At any rate, it was no infield fly to William, and when Bill Delancey recognized it as a fly, but couldn't catch it, Warnke scored from third base and Klem ruled Klein safe at first.

Manager Frisch became so indignant at Klem's failure to recognize the infield fly that he said things that caused him to be expelled from the game. Subsequently he was fined $100 and Coach Connelley was fined $25 for standing up for his manager, as coaches are pledged to do.

Heydler Saw Klem's Boner. Subsequently President John A. Heydler of the National League, who was a spectator at the game, ruled that Klem made a mistake, but he forgot to rescind the $100 Frisch or the $25 Gonzales fine. However, he did order that Warnke's run would count, but that the balance of the game would be replayed from that point.

And so at 2 o'clock this afternoon the Cardinals will take the field, with the Cubs at bat in the seventh inning, with Billy Herman on third base, Woody English on second, Babe Herman at bat and two out.

The scoreboard will show the Cardinals leading, 5 to 1, and if the Cardinals can overcome that advantage in the eighth and ninth innings they can move into second place. A, however, has wagered with B that the Cardinals are just going to have a little extra exercise, and A usually knows what he is talking about when he goes to betting with B.

convert such forlorn hopes into flag winners. But apparently baseball men don't know what failure means—not until they pass out in mid-season with a "here's your hat what's your hurry" parting speech.

Not Much Background.

DRESSEN is a rather unimportant figure in baseball. What Cincinnati sees in him as the possible Messer who is asked the possible moose who is to lead the Reds from the Wilderness is not apparent. Probably the club has decided that famous names mean nothing, when it comes to producing pennant winners.

Take for example this list of failures in past times, all of whom attempted to put the Reds on the map:

Tom Loftus, Charley Comiskey, Buck Ewing, Biddy McPhee, Joe Kelly, Ned Hanlon, Clark Griffith, Hank O'Day, Joe Tinker, "Choke 'Em Charley" Herzog, Christy Matthewson, Heine Groh, Pat Moran, Jack Hendricks, and the more recent ones of Dan Howley and Donie Bush.

In turn each of these famous men has gone down to failure since the year 1890. What, one might ask, can Charley Dressen's dream be expected to materialise, when such men have failed?

RACING ENTRIES AND SELECTIONS

PITTER PAT IS NOSE VICTOR IN FLASH STAKES

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 31.—The Belair stud's Pitter Pat, a chestnut son of Pennant, sire also of mighty Equilope, raced to a nose victory in the sixtieth renewal of the $3500 Flash stakes for two-year-olds before a crowd of 15,000 opening-day fans at the Saratoga Springs race track yesterday. The distance was five and a half furlongs.

The colt, making the second start of his career, came charging through in the stretch to take the lead from the Fair Fields stable's Try Sympathy, the top-weighted favorite. Five lengths behind Try Sympathy, in third place, was Miss Elizabeth J. Ward's Supreme Court. Catwaba Farm's Polar Flight, coupled in the betting with Supreme Court, finished fourth in the field of 10.

Try Sympathy, the 11-to-5 choice as the result of her sweep through the West, including the Hyde Park Stakes at Arlington Park, dashed away from the barrier in front and to the final strides set a burning pace. Pitter Pat, second favorite at 18 to 5, never trailed by more than a length, however, and from a head back at the furlong pole drove to the front to take the decision by a nose.

To earn the purse of $2525, Pitter Pat stepped the distance in 1:08 3/5. The time was two seconds slower than the track record, but the racing strip was a trifle off as the result of heavy rains.

The triumph gave James Fitzsimmons, veteran trainer, a double for the day. He saddled Slapdash to take the first race.

Black Buddy, a top-notch two-year-old of 1933 from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greenlee Stable, came through with his first victory of the year in beating four other high-class sprinters in the American Legion Handicap of seven furlongs.

Given only one mile to run against such capable performers as Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, winner of the Withers mile, and A. C. Schwartz's Gay Monarch, returning from a successful Western campaign, Black Buddy drove to a length and a half decision to pay his backers 7 to 1. Gay Monarch was second and Singing Wood third. E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow and the Sage Stables' Bright Hope brought up the rear.

Black Buddy's triumph was even more important than the triumph of Pitter Pat, the mistress of Greenlee, earning $3700. He set all the pace, running the seven-eighths of a mile in 1:24 4/5.

The opening of the meeting marked the return of legalized betting to Saratoga for the first time since 1910. More than 100 bookmakers lined the enlarged and improved betting ring. Although no figures were available, one bookmaker estimated his play from 25 to 50 per cent greater than last year.

COMMONS HEAR BALDWIN, BACK AIR EXPANSION

Defeat Censure Proposal
After Getting Warning From Acting Premier As to Germany.

DANGER OF 'TERRIBLE JEOPARDY' LATER

Distrust of Berlin Policies
Also Is Shown in Statements of Sir John Simon and Churchill.

LONDON, July 31.—Great Britain went ahead today with plans for a stronger air force. Approval of the expansion program was voted overwhelmingly by the House of Commons after Stanley Baldwin, acting Prime Minister, expressed belief Germany might greatly enlarge its armaments in the air. A Laborite motion to censure the air plans was rejected by a vote of 404 to 60.

Distrust of Germany's plans was indicated by the statements of Baldwin and Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary. Opponents of increased appropriations for aircraft did not press their fight.

A charge that Germany, "in violation of the peace treaty, has created a military air force now nearly two-thirds as strong as our home defense force" made by Winston Churchill, Conservative member of Parliament.

"If we do not act now," Baldwin told the House, "we may find ourselves later on in terrible jeopardy."

Great Britain has already served notice it intends to ask for a bigger navy at the 1935 naval conference. The air force was engaged last week in defensive and offensive maneuvers over London, said by Government opponents to have been timed with parliamentary debate on the air program.

Baldwin, in one of the most sensational foreign policy speeches heard in the House since the World War, said rapid advancement in the air had made Great Britain foresee a new frontier extending beyond its own borders.

"Let us not forget," he said, "that since the day of old frontiers have gone and when you think of the defenses of England you no longer think of the white cliffs of Dover; you think of the Rhine. That is where our frontier lies today."

Records Indicate Error in Figures as to U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Assertion by Stanley Baldwin in the House of Commons that military air services of the United States had been increased by 240 planes in the past four years was not borne out by an examination of available War and Navy Department records.

Congress in 1926 authorized a building program to increase the Navy strength to 1000 planes. This figure was attained in 1930, and since then routine replacements of obsolete or crashed ships have not increased the number above 1000.

The present army strength is about 1475 planes of all types, including 100 allotted to the National Guard.

Increased building activity, however, is contemplated for both services in the immediate future.

Expansion Is Contemplated.

The army plans to add 400 planes during the present fiscal year ending next June 30. In this are included 81 bombers already purchased from $7,500,000 Public Works allotment, which is expected in addition to provide funds for 30 attack planes. An appropriation of $11,000,000 will finance purchase of the remainder of various types.

Army Air Corps officials said, however, the total effective strength would not be increased by these additions owing to obsolescence.

The Newton D. Baker committee, which investigated the corps after its temporary service in carrying the air mail, recommended the building of the army air wing up to 2300 planes.

An addition of 1184 planes to the naval air service has been authorized by Congress, and $12,000,000 has been allotted by PWA for the purchase of the initial 200 in a seven-year program. None of these of the program is dependent on the appropriation of the necessary money.

Retail Food Prices Rise.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—An increase of three-tenths of 1 per cent in retail food prices during the two weeks ended July 17 was reported today by the Department of Labor. Prices were 5 per cent higher than on July 15, 1933, and 9 per cent above the level of two years ago.

The department's index for the two-week period stood at 109.9 per cent of the 1913 level, compared with 109.8 in the previous two weeks. The survey covers 81 of the country's largest cities.

NRA as Conducted Is 'Abhorrent To American Sense of Justice,' Says Former Solicitor-General

Thomas D. Thatcher Asserts Compliance Is Forced 'Regardless of Damage'—Calls
Method of Appeal Inadequate.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The NRA as administered by Hugh S. Johnson was described last night by Thomas D. Thatcher, Solicitor-General in the Hoover administration, as "abhorrent to the American sense of justice and fair play."

Speaking over a national radio hook-up in the Republican National Committee's political speech series, Thatcher said the great question to be determined in the next Congress was to what extent the policy of giving the President vast powers over agriculture and industry should be continued.

"The question will certainly be considered, and may well be decided, by the new Congress," Thatcher said. "Consequently, it should be the controlling issue in the congressional election this fall."

Issue Above Parties.

"It involves the American system of government and rises far above the fortunes of candidates or of political parties. Knowledge of the new system and its effect upon individual men and women is necessary to intelligent discussion."

Under necessity in the last 17 months, he said, hasty legislative and executive action had been taken without "considered thought of the ultimate consequences of the action taken."

"Vast powers over finance, agriculture, industry and commerce have been delegated to the President, who in turn has delegated these extraordinary powers to subordinate officials, and even to persons in private life who are not under the duties and obligations imposed by statute upon those charged with official responsibility."

Regimentation of People.

"Through the exercise of such powers, thus delegated, the individual pursuits of our people have been brought under bureaucratic regimentation and control."

Thatcher said the Government had employed the boycott to "coerce compliance with code provisions" and added:

"The net result of these and other coercive measures contained in the codes, in the absence of any adequate method of appeal to the courts, is to compel compliance regardless of loss or damage which may result."

"That the administration will not reform the NRA unless compelled to do so by vigorous opposition in Congress seems certain."

"No well-intentioned bureaucrat ever relinquished his power to decide an issue arising between the Government and one of its citizens."

"It is for the people to say, in the coming elections, whether such powers shall be continued without restraint."

"Gen. Johnson calls the NRA self-government in business. Senator Borah calls it bureaucracy in combination with monopoly. Call it what you will. As it is now administered, it is abhorrent to the American sense of justice and fair play."

TECHNICAL DIRECTOR FOR TREE BELT PLAN

Raphael Von Selected to Develop Methods of Raising Nursery Stock.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Dr. Raphael Von, director of the Lake States Forest Experiment Station, was placed in charge yesterday of technical phases of the great plains tree belt project.

Dr. Von will collaborate with Fred W. Morrill, administrative head of the project, which calls for a belt of trees 100 miles wide from the Canadian border to the Texas Panhandle.

Dr. Von arrived here recently from St. Paul. His principal job will be to develop methods for raising the required nursery stock and for planting the trees.

The shelter belt, he said today, would help materially in checking dust storms and alleviating drought, but added:

"Windbreak planting in the plains is only one of the means of reducing wind erosion and creating more favorable climatic conditions. Stopping wind erosion by expanding the grassy areas or stabilizing the soil by different methods of cropping, must be a part of the larger project."

"All these activities must be integrated and directed toward the common goal. This will call for the closest co-operation with other agencies, including the state conservation departments, state agricultural colleges and experiment stations, the Bureau of Soils, Biological Survey, Bureau of Plant Industry, and Weather Bureau."

POPE LEAVING THIS WEEK FOR HIS SUMMER ESTATE

It Will Be First Time Pope Has Spent Night Outside the Vatican.

VATICAN CITY, July 31.—Pope Pius will leave for his summer estate, Castel Gandolfo, Friday or Saturday, it was announced by Vatican prelates today.

The Pope will be transferred to the summer palace, which will be used for the first time in many years. Never since his ascendancy has Pope Pius passed a night outside the Vatican.

At Castel Gandolfo, 1400 feet high in the Alban Hills, the Pope will have access to the church's most extensive possession. The summer estate covers 136 acres, 25 acres more than the church state itself. Its confines embrace farm lands, beautiful gardens, ancient ruins and palatial residences. Wireless telephone communication with the Vatican is maintained, and a paved highway connects the estate with Rome.

CELEBRATION OF NAVY DAY

Slogan Will Be 'Treaty Navy, Fully Maintained.'

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Naval commanders afloat and ashore were instructed yesterday by Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations, to co-operate with the Navy League in observance of Navy day, Oct. 27. The celebration will have as its slogan "A treaty navy, fully maintained, backed by an adequate merchant marine."

In informing Secretary Swanson of plans to commemorate Navy day on the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, Nelson Macy, league president, said the day would mean much this year to every patriotic American because "we have started a treaty navy, systematic naval building plan, thanks to the President's wise policy and the passage of the Vinson bill."

Prof. Rogers Goes to India.

SEANGHAI, July 31.—Prof. James Harvey Rogers, financial adviser to President Roosevelt, left China today for India to pursue his study of the use of silver in Oriental monetary systems. Rogers made a thorough investigation of the silver question in China. He was in Tokyo for about a week, interviewing bankers and officials and ascertaining how the Japanese managed currency works.

PREMIER DECLARES JAPAN WON'T SEEK NAVAL PARITY NOW

"Not in My Mind to Expect
Such Radical Changes As
That So Suddenly,"
Okada Asserts.

TOKIO, July 31.—Japan does not expect the United States and Great Britain to reduce their naval armaments to Japan's level, Premier Katsuko Okada told foreign correspondents today.

Japan is undecided, he added, whether to abrogate the Washington treaty of 1922, by which the United States, Britain and Japan established a 5-5-3 ratio for capital ships.

At his first meeting with representatives of the world's press, the new Premier expressed confidence the 1935 naval conference would succeed.

"In order to reduce the burden of taxation borne by peoples of the world," he said, "naval armaments must be reduced to the smallest proportions possible. Such naval limitation must come from reductions on the part of the heaviest armed nations."

Premier Okada was asked whether this meant Japan would demand parity with America and Great Britain, requiring them to reduce to Japan's level.

"It is not in my mind to expect such radical changes as that so suddenly," he replied.

Hopes for Better Method.

"But I cannot favor the present ratio principle in naval limitation, which hurts the self-respect of certain nations," the Premier-Admiral continued.

"I hope some better method can be discovered, here at present I am not in a position to make definite suggestions on the subject. Whether Japan should abrogate the Washington treaty is still under consideration, but has not yet been settled."

Asked whether he expected a United States-Japanese naval race to result if the 1935 conference failed, Okada answered:

"In the first place, I refuse to believe the conference will fail. I fully believe it will be successful. Personally, I sincerely want it to succeed."

"I am unable," he said, "to see any reason why President Roosevelt's journey to Hawaii should be associated with naval questions (as was done by the Japanese press)."

Japan Wants to Keep Islands.

He said Japan was determined to retain islands in the equatorial Pacific held under a mandate of the League of Nations, although Japan's accession from the League is effective next March.

"There is no reason for Japan to relinquish the islands," Okada asserted. "We are determined to retain them chiefly for commercial reasons. We have money invested and are carrying on businesses there."

Asked if he had definite plans to promote friendship between the United States and Japan, the Premier said:

"I believe America and Japan are bound to live in the most intimate friendship. There are no difficult questions between the two countries."

"The basic principle of our policy is to promote Japan's friendly relations with other Powers in the interest of world peace," he continued.

"The world is seething with political, economic and social unrest, producing an international atmosphere of extreme uncertainty. The situation in Europe today may be said to be even more alarming than it was 20 years ago, prior to the great war."

"It is all the more incumbent upon us to exert every effort to restore international relations to their normal condition and to secure permanent peace."

Comment on China.

"Concerning China, our nearest neighbor, we are watching developments there with the utmost concern because they affect immediately and with the highest importance the situation in Eastern Asia."

"We believe it is Japan's high mission to contribute to the maintenance of peace and order and the cultural advancement in Eastern Asia."

"The Japanese people, fully realizing their great responsibilities in this regard, are striving to fulfill them."

"The matter of readjustment of relations between Japan and Soviet Russia is being given careful consideration."

"Concerning difficulties regarding trade which Japan recently encountered in various quarters of the globe, I believe they can be settled."

661,094 IN EXECUTIVE BRANCH
OF GOVERNMENT IN JUNE

New High for Employees in Peace Time; Total Exceeds by 2008 That for May.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—A June tally of 661,094 employees in the executive branch of the Federal Government was announced today by the Civil Service Commission, a continued high in peace-time service.

The Armistice day, 1919, grand total was 917,760, which had dropped by July, 1920, to 661,118, a figure which, according to the Civil Service, "still had war in it."

The June executive employees exceeded by 2008 the May total of 659,086. In March the total was 625,559.

All these totals are exclusive of legislative, judicial, and military branches of the Federal Government. Neither do they include employees of the District of Columbia.

FIRST YELLOWSTONE STAMPS

Farley Inaugurates Sale of Special National Park Issue.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 31.—Postmaster-General Farley inaugurated the sale of a special issue of National Park stamps here yesterday.

The initial block of stamps, bearing a picture of Old Faithful geyser, were sold by the Postmaster-General to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Cheyenne, Wyo., who in turn presented the first stamp to W. H. Jackson, 91 years old, the first photographer to take a picture of Old Faithful. Jackson later gave the stamp to the Yellowstone Museum at Mammoth Hot Springs.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The NRA yesterday reported a 30 per cent employment increase in the can manufacturing industry in the year ending July 1.

INACTIVE ALASKAN CRATER FOUND BY "GLACIER PRIEST"

Father Hubbard Estimates
It Is Larger Than Aniakchak—On Tip of Peninsula.

FALSE PASS, Alaska, July 31.—Discovery of an inactive crater even larger than the famous Aniakchak ridge and forced rivers and lakes is reported by the Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest," after a month of hardships and adventure.

Floods and encounters with giant Pavlov brown bears were experienced by the expedition in the unexplored region between Pavlov Volcano and the tip of the Alaska Peninsula.

"The party left its base camp here on June 22 for the fantastic Aglheen pinnacles, a group of weird and needle-like peaks visible from the sea coast, but hitherto unexplored and uncimbed," Father Hubbard said. "The pinnacles constitute one of the unnamed wonders of the world."

Carrying heavy packs of scientific, camp and photographic equipment, the party went over mountain ridges and forded rivers and lakes until it established its final camp at the base of the Aglheen Pinnacles.

18 Inches of Rain.

Good weather which marked the trip inland deserted the expedition as they prepared for the climb. For 11 days torrential rains flooded the country, marooning the food supply. Eighteen inches of rain fell in three days. During a break in the storm, Father Hubbard, Kenneth Chisholm, his younger brother Douglas, and Edgar Levin, his assistants from Santa Clara University, attempted to fight their way back to the coast for supplies.

Levin and Kenneth Chisholm, both carrying 100-pound packs were

Plans for Memorial Plaza.

THE suggestion of John Jay Johns, in the Post-Dispatch last Friday, for a fountain in the center of the Memorial Plaza is an excellent one, but has been anticipated by the Plaza Commission. The commission long ago came to the conclusion that the use of water in the Plaza design would be highly desirable. Therefore, the plans, as thus far developed, call for fountains and pools.

The city now owns title to three blocks between Market and Chestnut and Twelfth and Fifteenth streets. These blocks were never intended to be built upon, but were to be left open to form what will be known as Memorial Plaza. They will be embellished with not only pools and fountains, but possibly with trees and shrubbery, properly designed lighting standards and, in time, good sculpture and other accessories of outdoor architecture.

The city owns title to three blocks lying between Chestnut and Pine streets between Twelfth and Fifteenth streets. It has always been the intention to build on these three blocks. The center block, bounded by Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Pine and Chestnut, is on the north-and-south axis running from the Public Library to the Municipal Courts Building. This is the site originally allotted to the Soldiers Memorial. The blocks to the east and west of this site are reserved for future public buildings, and when, and only when, they are completed, will the Memorial Plaza assume its true form. It will then be bounded on the south by City Hall, Municipal Courts Building and the Auditorium, on the north by three dignified public buildings, the center one of which will be the Soldiers Memorial.

The Plaza will be bounded on the east by the City Courts Building, and terminated at its west end, Fifteenth street, by some feature of an architectural character like the Chateau d'Eau which has been suggested. From this, water will issue in a cascade into a pool north of the Auditorium. The same water will reappear in another large pool and fountain in the middle of the block, lying between the Municipal Courts Building and the Soldiers Memorial, to reappear again in another pool in the block north of the City Hall and west of the City Courts.

The present plans for the Soldiers Memorial call for a building about the height of the Municipal Courts Building, surrounded by a simple colonnade. The building will be open at the center, so that the vista from the library to the Municipal Courts Building will not be entirely closed.

The city also holds title to a seventh block, namely, that lying between Pine and Olive, and Thirteenth and Fourteenth. It is proposed that this block will constitute a sort of garden court, or small plaza, between the library and the Memorial Building.

If, in the course of time, the privately-owned buildings facing this court on Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets are designed in proper architectural character, St. Louis will possess a center of which she may well be proud.

There need be no fear of any feeling of congestion. The Memorial Plaza itself will be more than a quarter of a mile long and the distance from building to building, north and south, will be something over 500 hundred feet.

A Marathon Love Affair.

TO the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
JULIAN HAWTHORNE, who died the other day, told me once at dinner: "I remember one evening when I was a young lad, of walking 14 miles each way to a dance. It was for a girl that I did it. One that I was greatly in love with at the time. I walked to Concord in the evening, danced till midnight with the girl, and then walked back to Cambridge, arriving at 6 a. m.—a round trip of 28 miles with dancing between."

Senator Bates on Criminal Procedure Reform.

TO the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
IN a recent editorial advocating more stringent criminal statutes in Missouri, you stated that candidates for the General Assembly should announce their position upon this question in advance of the primary.

I am in favor of more stringent laws against crime, but an even stronger evidence of my views than this statement will be found in my past record, as set forth in your own news and editorial columns.

I quote from a news article in your issue of Feb. 16, 1927:

"The brunt of the fight for the reform measures (Missouri Association for Criminal Justice bills) was borne by Senator Zollinger of Audrain County."

Senator Bates of St. Louis, Senator Ford of Nodaway County, Senator Wammack of Stoddard County and Senator Summers of Kansas City."

I could give you other quotations from your own publication, but I believe the foregoing will suffice to show my position.

WILLIAM MAFITT BATES.

MAKING THE PRIMARY CLICK.

They are conducting a political experiment in Massachusetts. It is called the pre-primary convention. Its purpose is to simplify the primary by avoiding the confusion inseparable from a multiplicity of candidates with whose fitness for office the public has no means of informing itself.

There is nothing mandatory in the pre-primary convention's action. It is an advisory body, so to speak. It indorses the nominees for offices for the entire electorate votes. The indorsement simply means that the party leaders sponsor the candidates so approved. Nobody is enjoined from running for office merely because he failed to get the pre-primary convention's sanction. The field is open to him, precisely as if the pre-primary convention had never met. He can get his name on the ticket by filing nomination papers.

The effectiveness of the plan remains to be demonstrated. It is assumed that the candidates preferred by the pre-primary conventions, and designated as such on the primary ballot, will have a certain moral advantage in coming before the public as the choice of the party leaders. They will be vouched for at least by the expert and considered judgment of the party. The average voter will know for whom he is voting. He will not have to shut his eyes and pull a number out of a hat, as he often, in effect, has to do in primary elections. A case immediately in point may be cited—that of the primary in Texas Saturday, where the ballot, according to press reports, "was a yard long and almost as wide."

In the Massachusetts plan, the representative character of the pre-primary convention is maintained. Each voting district is entitled to a delegate for every 1500 votes cast at the previous gubernatorial election. A district that cast less than that number of votes has one delegate. No electoral unit, therefore, is excluded. Everyone is represented in equitable proportion.

Both of the major parties have held pre-primary conventions this year and indorsed candidates for Governor and United States Senator. Whether they have voiced popular sentiment, we are not in a position to say. But a vehement protest has been filed by former Mayor Curley of Boston against the action of the Democratic convention, which, he charges, was controlled by Gov. Ely and Senator Walsh. Mr. Curley is ambitious to be Governor himself, has announced his intention to run, as he may rightfully and is privileged to do, and thus puts the plan to something of a test at the very outset.

The Curley revolt strikes us as a wholesome defiance. It is proof, too, that the fundamental theory of the primary, to put the question of selecting candidates before the whole party, is still intact in Massachusetts. But Mr. Curley's declared intention, if elected, to ask for the repeal of the pre-primary convention act, seems to us unfortunate. Here is an effort to amend the primary law, without in any way impairing its essential purpose of vesting the nominating power in the rank and file. It is unfortunately true that this essential purpose has been more theoretical than actual. The abuses inherent in the old delegate convention were such as to preclude the probability of reviving it. Yet the primary has failed to meet expectation. It is notorious that primary nominations are almost always minority nominations. Voters simply will not participate in them, except in small numbers. Why this is so may be variously explained. One reason that cannot be rejected is the fact that the voter, in so many instances, has no idea for whom to vote.

That is a condition which should, and somehow must, be remedied, as Massachusetts is trying to do.

A VENTURE INTO THE STRATOSPHERE.

Does anyone think that the three army aeronauts who made a thrilling flight and perilous descent in the Explorer, world's largest free balloon, were merely seeking an altitude record or just trying to escape the heat? If so, it is a wild guess. A complete list of what they set out to do would probably fill a column. A few of the objectives of the cargo of delicate instruments they took along were: measurement of temperature, barometric pressure, cosmic rays, solar radiation and sky brightness, study of electrical conditions, actinic value of light, wind direction and velocity, effects of altitude on radio, photographing of solar spectrum and of the earth to check methods for determining altitude.

Wrecking of all the instruments, except possibly the barograph, is the great disappointment of the flight, which had required months of preparation. It was a flying scientific laboratory in which Maj. Kepner, Capt. Anderson and Capt. Stevens took off. When the balloon was torn open, after rising to 60,000 feet, they saved their lives by parachute leaps, happily escaping the fate of the three Russian balloonists who were killed last January after reaching an altitude of 62,300 feet.

This mishap will no more than delay the insatiable research into the stratosphere and other lofty phenomena. The Army Air Corps, National Geographic Society and co-operating groups may be expected to continue the work as soon as possible. The loss of one balloon and one set of apparatus no more stops zealous scientists than destruction of one web stop the indefatigable spider.

If the Cardinals lose the National League pennant this year, it will be because there are not enough Dean boys.

THIS SUMMER IN MISSOURI.

At this time of year ordinarily a lovely country lush with the fruits of creation, Missouri is instead suffering from one of the most ruthless drouths in history. In the fields, corn is dying or is dead; other crops, if not already abandoned or cut for fodder, are in the same condition. Green vegetables are almost unobtainable. In the woods, scrub growth is withering and the large trees, though still green, cannot long withstand the famishing process. Here and there, forest fires rage and the sky gives no promise of the rain that would quench them. Streams are at the lowest stage in memory. Wild life is disappearing. Missouri's woods and countryside are truly a tragic sight.

In the country, the subject of the weather is not the idle and often almost academic one it is in the city. We in the city suffer displeasure and annoyance and sometimes illness at times like this, but in the country everything depends upon that balance of rain and sunshine that makes the earth fruitful; that provides pasture for stock; that brings fruit on the trees; that produces crops from which livelihood must be obtained. In the country just now there is a feeling of despair, ranging from extreme apprehension about food supplies in the coming winter.

to a superstitious belief that the world is coming to an end.

We have thought ourselves cursed with an overabundance of everything. Statesmen have grown gray pondering the problem of agricultural surpluses. We are now left to reflect upon the infinitely worse problem of scarcity.

ON THE UPPER RIVERS.

Work is progressing rapidly on the dams which are to convert the Upper Mississippi River into a series of lakes. Some of the 26 construction units are complete, others are just beginning. There are already two such lakes on the upper river—one made by the Keokuk Dam, the other by nature. They are respectively Cooper Lake and Lake Pepin.

It is estimated that 15,000 men will be given employment on the sites of these dams, the total cost of which will approximate $144,000,000. Not since the palmy days of lumbering has there been so much activity on the upper river. Tow boats go to and fro. Dredges puff and strain. The Stars and Stripes fly with the red flag of the engineers from steamboats, quarter boats, office boats, etc.

The roller dams on the Upper Mississippi are something new in engineering. They have the virtue of being lifted up by mechanical processes, so that the water may run under the dam and carry its alluvium with it. It is in this way that the dams on the Mississippi will avoid immense accumulations of sand and silt. The purpose of these dams is to give the Mississippi from St. Louis to Minneapolis a uniform minimum depth of nine feet. Flood control is not a great problem on the Upper Mississippi. It will be exercised only to a limited degree by controlling the discharge under the dams.

The same engineering principle is being applied to the Upper Missouri. The Government has just let the contract for a dam on the Missouri at Fort Peck. The effect of this dam will be to impound the waters of the Upper Missouri, a function that will serve the purposes both of flood control and of irrigation.

The present engineering policy upon the Missouri is that of regulation, with a vast storage reservoir at the top. The Mississippi plan is that of canalization, in which the flow of water is arrested by dams. There is no such water supply at the head of the Mississippi as there is at the head of the Missouri.

The water impounded behind the Fort Peck Dam will be stored in the wet season and liberated as needed. Heretofore, the water has rushed down from the mountains and surged down the Missouri the best way it could, as wild and unbridled a stream as there was in the world. If the calculations of the engineers are right, the Big Muddy will henceforth be on a curb bit.

The Upper Mississippi improvement should be impressive, for here is one of the most beautiful of rivers. At the very outset of the dam system, which begins at Alton, the limestone cliffs, sculptured by time, are the chief show-piece of the St. Louis excursion boats. Farther north, the river traverses a most picturesque region. The hills are higher. There are more islands. The water is clearer. The shores are rockier. To make the Upper Mississippi into a chain of lakes must in time be to make it one of the greatest of our playgrounds.

DOLLFUS'S REQUEST TO AUSTRIA.

Prince Starhemberg, in his address to the Austrian people shortly after the Chancellor's assassination, said: "Do not depart one inch from the way prescribed by Dollfuss, just as the Federal Cabinet will not depart one inch from it." Dr. Schuschnigg, the new Chancellor, also has indicated the Government will adhere rigidly to the Dollfuss policies. So the posthumous article by Dollfuss, printed in the Post-Dispatch Sunday, as written for the Paris Excelsior, takes on more than historic interest. It outlines the policies which Austria, powder keg of Europe, is to follow for the present.

"Those who are not for us are against us," wrote Dollfuss. And, "We find ourselves at the height of our battle. . . . Many of us feel ourselves in danger of a foul blow." The words were prophetic, not only for Dollfuss, but for his successors. The new Cabinet may be expected to follow Dollfuss' patriotic defense of his country against the Nazis, as well as his oppression of the Socialists. Both phases of the battle may provoke a "foul blow" at any moment. The hopes for European peace center upon the stability of the new Government.

The extracts reprinted on this page from a Current History article show what manner of man is Vice-Chancellor Starhemberg. It is probable he will be the real ruler of Austria, using Chancellor Schuschnigg as his straw man. Last April, Schuschnigg yielded to Starhemberg his control over the Clerical Troopers, a private army allied with the Christian Social party, and they were incorporated in the Heimwehr. Dollfuss had similarly submitted to the young Prince. On the audacious, ambitious Starhemberg and the Fascist Heimwehr rests the issue of peace or war in Europe as he carries out the Dollfuss policies, which in many respects were his own.

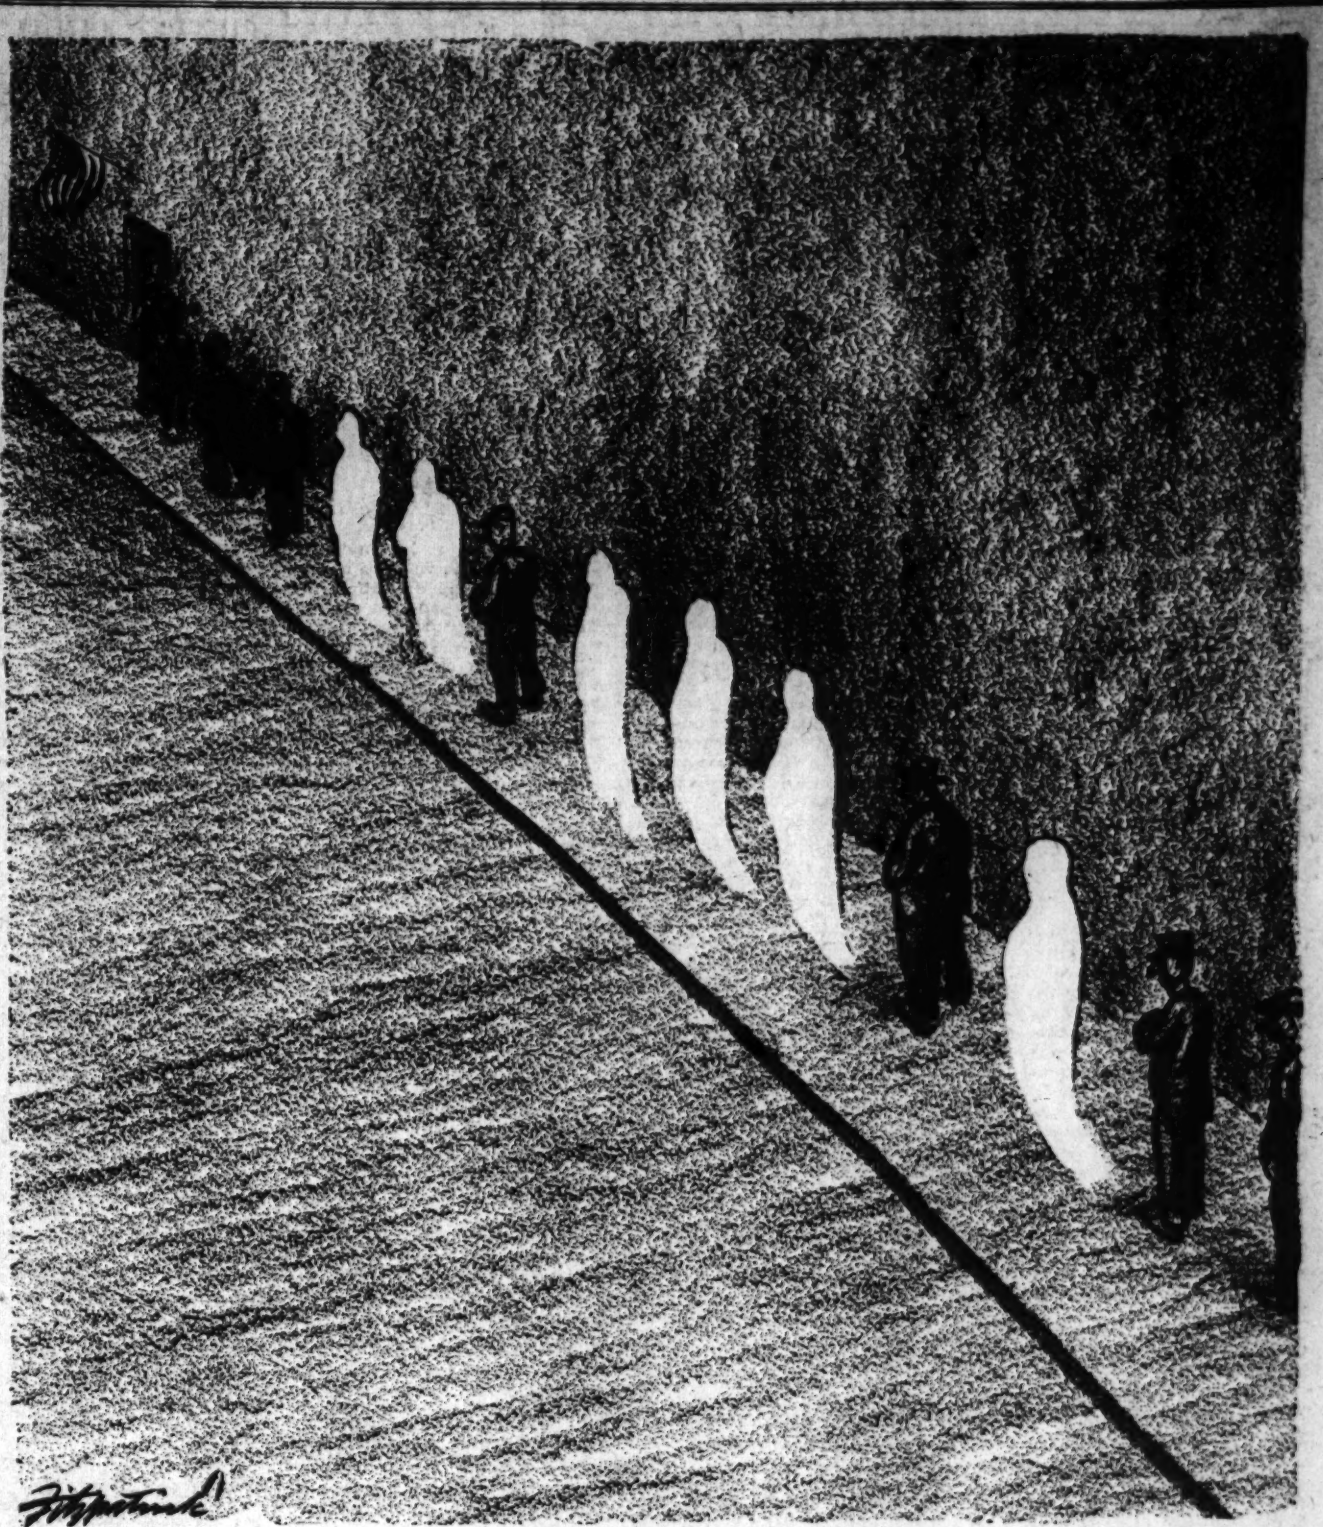

JOURNALISTIC CONFIDENCES IN KENTUCKY.

Newspaper men in Kentucky take on a grave liability when they accept information in confidence. Last March, Vance Armentrout, acting editor of the Courier-Journal, was jailed by the legislative investigating committee when he refused to disclose the name of the writer of a letter printed in his newspaper. Now comes the full story, from Danville, Ky., of the two reporters who must spend six hours of every day, excepting Sunday, behind the bars for failing to comply with the demands of a Police Judge, one Jay W. Harlan.

Some 10 days ago, it seems, an effigy of a State Representative was hanged in Danville and the reporters, Wesley Carly and Jack Durham, were on hand to chronicle the event for several newspapers. Subsequently, they said they had been told in advance that the "hanging" was to take place; it was their refusal to divulge the name of the informant which led the Police Judge to cite them for contempt of court—an offense which may continue so long as the court acts as a court of inquiry.

Inasmuch as they are allowed to continue their work, we trust they stick it out. Small-town judicial pomposity such as that which is plaguing them just now will not continue "to cross public opinion" (the Judge's words) indefinitely. The inviolability of confidential information must be established—even in the Blue Grass State—and the Danville reporters are spending hours behind the bars to that end.

Are we to infer that the stratosphere over the Dakotas is a little more intense than it is over most places?

Starhemberg's Power in Austria

Driving ambition, hatred of Socialism and fixity of purpose characterize Austrian leader, writer says; once viewed Hitler as idol, but now is enemy of Nazis; by Mussolini's help, Prince built Heimwehr into force of 100,000; an advocate of Hapsburg restoration, his policies will have important bearing on nation's future.

Emil Lengyel in August Current History; Reprinted by Permission.

AROUND the person of Prince Ernst Rüdiger von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor of Austria and leader of its Fascist Home Guard (the Heimwehr), his followers have built a legend. His political opponents speak of him as extremely "bornieré," that is, of limited mental capacity. All agree, however, that without him, Austria's contemporary history would be entirely different.

Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss had political ability and native intelligence; Minister of the Interior Emil Fey has a strong will and ruthlessness; Prince Starhemberg has none of these characteristics to such a large degree, but he has fixity of purpose. Nevertheless, it is his Austria that is a living reality today and his obsession that created the new state.

Although he knows the highways and byways of Vienna, he does not know Vienna's soul—its peaceful ways and progressive cosmopolitanism. His simple mind is baffled by the complexity of the metropolis, and he reacts to it with violent hatred. Nor does he know anything about Socialism, which explains his excessive hatred of the Marxian creed. He could have easily convinced himself of the efficiency and honesty of the Socialist city government of Vienna, but he did not care to complicate his life by trying to disprove fundamental beliefs.

The Starhemberg family had enormous estates and more than a score of castles. The Princes were kind and treated their servants with as much solicitude as if they had been their sons. Ernst Rüdiger often heard his elders hold forth at the family dinner table about progress, which they called an insult to God, and about Socialism, which was high treason to them.

What was a young Prince to do in a Republic run by the common herd? He decided to set out on a trip of adventure, offering his sword to the champions of noble causes. In 1923, he was in Munich, drinking in the words of a countryman of his, Adolf Hitler. The Prince joined the Hitler forces, and we are told he took part in the beer hall putsch.

After Hitler's failure, Starhemberg returned to Austria, disappointed but not dismayed. He now turned to his own estates and began to drill his hundreds of servants. Such private armies were very much in vogue in those days. Since he had much money and spent it lavishly, the Heimwehr gradually came under his influence. Starhemberg devoted all his time to organizing the reactionary forces throughout the Republic. So great was his zeal that he was forced into bankruptcy as a result of his lavish expenditures for the Heimwehr.

He had to find now a saving angel. What was more natural than to try to find a way to the heart of Mussolini, also a hater of Socialists? After several interviews, large shipments of arms and munitions were rolling in for the Heimwehr. These shipments, which originated in Italy, were disguised as "scrap iron" and "machine parts."

Now Adolf Hitler, his former idol, became an enemy. It was not difficult to convince the Austrian country people what a dangerous man the Nazi chieftain was. It was even easier to convince the Austrian politicians that they would sign their death warrant by going over to the Nazis. The persecution of the Catholics in Czechoslovakia naturally an-

Man Proposes, Nature Disposes

From the Magazine of Wall Street.

SO far as "adjustment" of agricultural production and prices is concerned, the New Deal planners cannot complain that the breaks have been against them. Through a variety of devices—all centering in the Treasury money bags—they have substantially cut down production of many crops. But their justifiable destruction looms small in comparison with the havoc wrought by nature.

For the second year in succession, we approach a harvest devastated by almost unprecedented drouth. On the basis of July 1 conditions, the smallest crops in 30 years are officially forecast for wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax. The corn crop, with the exception of 1930, also will be at a 30-year low. Together with sun-scorched pasturage, this means short rations for beef cattle, pigs and milch cows, over wide areas and a resultant reduction in the supply of meat and milk.

Among those to whom the farmers sell, there will be no shortage of food, for stocks as reduced will be ample. The domestic wheat carry-over—once as high as $83,000,000 bushels and now about 277,000,000 bushels—probably will be reduced to 125,000,000 bushels, no more than a workable reserve of a commodity of widely varying supply. Among the farmers whose crops are ruined, there will be distress. It will be largely, if not wholly, relieved by Federal relief disbursements. Farmers in areas free of drouth will enjoy substantially higher prices for their products. To general business the effect on balance is moderately unfavorable. To the AAA, the result is at least a temporary help.

With the surplus problem less acute, attention can turn to more careful long-range planning. The time may come when we will crave smiles rather than frowns, from Mother Nature.

FINANCES OF TWO CITIES.

From the Chicago Tribune.
F and Comptroller Upham indicate how rapid has been the city's progress toward financial solvency. So far as the city government is concerned, the worst is obviously over.

The levy for corporate purposes this year is less by more than $30,000,000 than the levy for 1930. The reduction exceeds 40 per cent. While expenses have been thus reduced, income has grown. The actual collections for city and school purposes in 1933 were more than $24,000,000 greater than in 1932. The city is spending less and receiving more. It has never defaulted on any of its bonds, except for a brief and purely technical default for a few days last January.

Meanwhile, much progress has been made in reducing the total of unpaid bills. A year ago on July 1, this item, which includes unpaid salaries, exceeded $30,000,000. This year on July 1, the corresponding item was a little over $11,000,000. The unpaid bills have been reduced by well over $19,000,000, or nearly 50 per cent.

The financial situation in New York presents a striking contrast. Gov. Lehman has conceded that his State this year will run $52,000,000 in the red, but some experienced observers believe his estimate is too optimistic by $30,000,000 or more. New York City has just had to apply to the bankers for $72,000,000 and has touched the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for $100,000,000 more. There has been nothing in New York to compare with Chicago's courageous attack upon expenditures and the improvement in Chicago's revenue returns. We are on the way out; they are still deep in the mire.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The extent to which the administration is concerned over the grip of the drought on the Middle West scarcely can be exaggerated. There has not been much publicity about this concern, but in the Interior Department, in Agriculture, in the FERA a great deal of study is being given to the problem of the vast area between the 100th meridian and the Rockies which perennially lacks a sufficient amount of rain.

Some of these studies were transmitted to the President before he left; other summaries of what is happening have been radioed to him on the Houston. And this is one reason he is going out of his way to visit Devils Lake in North Dakota on his return trip across the continent.

Devils Lake shows the extent to which all water in the great West has deserted the subsoil. Gradually the lake is disappearing. Once a sizeable body of water, it has fallen 30 feet, losing 60 per cent of its volume.

This illustrates what has happened to the Northwest wheat crop. Ordinarily the Dakotas, Western Nebraska and Kansas get only from 10 to 15 inches of rainfall a year. This is not enough for diversified farming, but in a non-drought year it is sufficient to permit a good crop of wheat, planted in the spring, with a growing season concentrated immediately after the snow melt.

Subsoil Water Gone.

NORTHWEST wheat draws its moisture not so much from rain as from the accumulation in the subsoil. Its roots penetrate four, five, sometimes six feet. But now five years of drought have completely depleted the subsoil. No matter how deep grow the wheat roots, moisture is almost nonexistent.

This is why wells, once sufficient for families and livestock, now are dry.

Soil experts of the Agriculture Department estimate that it will take years for the subsoil to recover its moisture in certain parts of the Middle West. Some of the land, they think, may never be reclaimable, due to the fact that the wind has scooped the dry top soil up in dust storms and unloaded it in places least appreciated.

Government Program.

As a result of these studies, the administration is working out a drought rehabilitation program, which although not yet complete, is taking four general lines: 1. Conversion of large areas of wheat land to pasture. This would curtail erosion, cut down dust storms, create a better soil surface for holding moisture.

2. Installation of a system of reservoirs.

3. Transplanting families to areas enjoying better rainfall.

4. Breaking prairie winds by the erection of the Presidents' shelter belt. This also would help to retain moisture.

Administration experts admit frankly that much of that vast, arid corridor running down through the Dakotas, Western Nebraska, Western Kansas to the Gulf, never should have been homesteaded. They have been consistent in this view. As far back as 1873 the Geological Survey reported that no part of this area could be "cultivated." One solution, therefore, is emigration—the moving of entire blocks of families—through the help of subsistence homesteads—to more arable land.

But the original homesteaders of the West came from pioneer stock. In the early days they fought Indians, wolves, the buffalo. Now they fight drought, cyclones, sub-zero weather. They were born fighting and they will die fighting.

And so far not many have shown any intention of leaving their arid acres.

South Dakota Homesteads.

THE administration, however, has prepared rich land in Southwest Dakota, capable of supporting 20 families, and thither as many drought-stricken farmers may be induced to move.

The administration also has worked out a plan for reservoirs—most people would call them ponds—on individual farms. Experts point out that if a farmer devotes five acres of this land for a pond, he will get not only water for his stock, but also enough fish to equal the food value of five acres of wheat.

No one of these presents a complete solution. Probably the drought problem never will be completely solved. But these are the more important projects which the President will study and observe first hand on his trip through the stricken Northwest.

Presidential Plagiarism.

THE President is being threatened with suit for $50,000. In a recent radio address he used the phrase "Do your part." Now from New York State woman comes protest:

"That was my phrase! I wrote to you and suggested it as a rallying cry for the nation. Now you have used it and given me no credit. I am retaining a lawyer who assures me that for a fee of $10,000 he can make it possible for me to get what is only my due."

Of a similar nature are letters from many other "originators" and authors of the CCC, the NRA, the PWA and so on. All protest that the President has stolen their ideas and called them his own.

Merry-Go-Round.

Mrs. Florence Kahn, San Francisco's hard-working Congresswoman, set some high water records last session in obtaining Federal grants for her district. Regarding party affiliation, she has a way of getting things done. The youngsters on Gen. Hugh Johnson's general staff are nicknamed "cophomores." They include Lieut. Pat Johnston (son of the General), Bob Strauss, son of the United States Ambassador to France, and John Swope, son of the head of General Electric. They tell friends they seriously contemplate growing beards in order to impress their elders. Although the son of a mine owner, Colorado's militant Progressive Senator Edward P. Costigan has always been on the side of mine workers. He began his public career as attorney for a group of union miners charged with murder as a result of the famous Ludlow mine war in 1914.

MUSICIAN DEAD

HUGO OLK

HUGO OLK, VIOLINIST AND COMPOSER, DIES

Former Concert Master for St. Louis Symphony Orchestra Victim of Pneumonia.

Hugo Olk, violinist, composer and former concert master of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, died of bronchial pneumonia yesterday at his home in Waterloo, Ill., after an illness of several days. He had been in poor health for about three years and was 64 years old.

The son of a musician, he had a varied and notable career in music. He was the principal first violinist and concert master of the St. Louis orchestra in the days when the late Max Zach was its conductor.

Mr. Olk was born March 28, 1870, at Koenigsberg, East Prussia, and studied the violin under his father, Carl Olk, and under four other teachers. As a youth he traveled for several years in Europe as soloist with the Olk Quintet Ensemble.

At the golden jubilee of one of his teachers, the great Joseph Joachim, about 1890, Mr. Olk was one of three pupils of the master chosen to play one movement each of Joachim's "Hungarian Concerto."

Played in Berlin Orchestra. In 1888 he played in Kroll's Opera House orchestra in Berlin and from 1890 to 1896 he was a member and soloist of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Thereafter he was solo violinist with the symphony orchestra of Helsinki, Finland, in 1898-99, and concert master and soloist of the symphony orchestra at Kiev, Russia, in 1899-1902.

Coming to America, he was a member and soloist of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Festival Orchestra for the World's Fair here in 1904. In the next several years he served, successively, as concert master in Henry Savage's "Parafin" orchestra, in the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra for two seasons and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra for a summer season.

From 1907 to 1917 he was concert master and solo violinist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and from 1907 until his health caused him to retire about three years ago he was a violin teacher. His studio was at Grand boulevard and Arsenal street. On his retirement, he moved to Waterloo.

Wrote Music for Violin. Mr. Olk composed music only for the violin, his principal works being technical studies.

He was married in 1916 to Miss Melba Hardy of Waterloo, who survives. Others surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Louis C. Roehlk, 2033 East Prairie avenue, and Mrs. Ernest Roehlk of Chicago, who married brothers, and a brother, Gustav Olk of Berlin, Germany.

The funeral will be at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Quernheim mortuary, Waterloo, with burial in Waterloo Cemetery.

QUEENIE SMITH IS A DELIGHTFUL 'SALLY'

Ziegfeld Musical Comedy on Forest Park Stage Pleases Big First Night Crowd.

SALLY, a musical comedy with music by Jerome Kern and lyrics by Victor Herbert, book by Guy Bolton and lyrics by Clifford Grey. Presented by the Municipal Opera Company in Forest Park with the following cast:

Queenie Smith... Barlett Simmons... Harry K. Morton... Miss Janet Wallace... A group of prominent St. Louisans will sail Sunday on the Bremen from New York to spend the late summer in Europe. In the group will be Mrs. Jackson Johnson, 25 Portland place; Mrs. J. D. Perry Francis, 20 Portland place; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Farrington of the Park Plaza, and Mrs. Henry Elliot, 35 Westmoreland place, and her daughter, Miss Georgia Elliot. Mrs. Elliot and her daughter have been at Nantucket, Mass., for the early summer, and Miss Georgia was a recent visitor at Woods Hole, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrington will join her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard, Hunteleigh Village, at the home of the Baron and Baroness Victor von Schilling, at Hohenwetterbach, Post Durlach, Baden, in Southern Germany. Mrs. Farrington and Mrs. von Gontard are the daughters of Baron and Baroness von Schilling.

The production has been fitted to the big stage admirably. Taking advantage of outdoor settings of the principal scenes, William Ziegfeld has created one Greenwich Village restaurant and two Long Island garden displays that range quite beyond any previous efforts for the summer. The added quality in that of which which has rarely been employed with greater charm.

"Sally" is an American Cinderella, a dishwasher in a Greenwich Village restaurant, who has ideas that she would like to become a great person in the theater. The story gives her the opportunity to dance her way to fame in the Folies and to marry a millionaire.

AFFECTING Sally's life and career are Mrs. Ten Brock, settlement house worker who gets her the dish-washing job; Constantine or "Connie," exiled Duke and waiter in the restaurant; Sally's first confidante concerning her ambitions; Otis Hooper, theatrical agent who gives Sally her first big chance at a garden party at the Farquar estate, and Miss Claire Peugnet, 4422 Lindell boulevard, have gone to Sturgeon Bay, Wis., where they will spend several weeks at Cabot Lodge.

As the show opens in the Elm Tree Alley Inn—Oak Tree Alley Inn at the Municipal Theater with fine botanical consideration for those patriotic trees—with a lively chorus and a colorful American locale, it is tempting to believe that "Sally" is a landmark in Municipal Opera history. The adaptation covers the stage as the proverbial glove and an American setting will probably always be two things which go together in plumes and doublets.

The movement, however, is not upward. The remainder of the evening follows pleasantly and with merry laughter rather than hearty fun.

Queenie Smith's Sally is an individual little mink, naive rather than radiant, and probably very much like the Sally of real life, if ever there was a Sally. Her small voice carried her vocal numbers well enough and the audience liked her dancing from the moment, almost unnoticed, that she appeared in apron and flat heels with other girls from the settlement house.

BARTLETT SIMMONS, as Blair Farquar, was a good musical comedy lover. His "Look for the Silver Liner" was the outstanding number of the show.

Harry K. Morton, left with little to do toward fashioning Sally's career, carried on with his dancing, which retains its season-long appeal for the outdoor theater. Eric and Victor Casmore, a loyal subject in the Duke of old country, provide a large part of the merriment. Frank Gaby, in vaudeville outfit, revives some of a decade ago that are still going the rounds of after-dinner speeches and remain funny if not forgotten. Nancy Welford is the stooge and contributes her own share to the "Little Church Around the Corner" number. Paul Haakon and Elmore Tennis again won an encore in a very lovely specialty dance and the chorus girls added considerably to the beauty of the production.

All in all, the real delight in "Sally" is in the settings, the restaurant and two white garden scenes, one of which comes from the wedding which ends the show, and the famous butterfly ballet from the Folies. The butterfly number, well-conceived rather than lavish, is testimony to the Municipal Theater's unique resources.

Following "Sally" next Monday night will come a revival of Sigmund Romberg's "New Moon," with Charlotte Lansing, Allan Jones, Leonard Ceady, Bartlett Simmons and Joseph Macaulay, as well as Doris Patston and Jack Sheehan, favorites of past seasons, who will make their first appearance this year. "Show Boat" will return on Monday, Aug. 13.

Canadian Appeals Judge Dies. By the Associated Press. MONTREAL, July 31.—Justice W. P. Guerin, 75 years old, of the Quebec Court of Appeals, died today. Judge Guerin had been in failing health for some time, and for the last two years was retired from active service on the bench. He was born in Montreal in 1859.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE MURDOCH SAUNDERS, Kingston, Jamaica, who came to St. Louis about a month ago to visit Mrs. Saunders' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace, the Price road, have taken a cottage on an island 40 miles north of Hibernia, Minn., where they will remain until the middle of August. They will return to St. Louis for a visit before going to New York, where they will spend several weeks. They will sail for their home early in the fall. Mrs. Saunders was before her marriage, Miss Janet Wallace.

A group of prominent St. Louisans will sail Sunday on the Bremen from New York to spend the late summer in Europe. In the group will be Mrs. Jackson Johnson, 25 Portland place; Mrs. J. D. Perry Francis, 20 Portland place; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Farrington of the Park Plaza, and Mrs. Henry Elliot, 35 Westmoreland place, and her daughter, Miss Georgia Elliot. Mr. and Mrs. Farrington will join her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard, Hunteleigh Village, at the home of the Baron and Baroness Victor von Schilling, at Hohenwetterbach, Post Durlach, Baden, in Southern Germany. Mrs. Farrington and Mrs. von Gontard are the daughters of Baron and Baroness von Schilling.

Stratford Lee Morton, Brentmoor, and his daughter, Mrs. Katharine Morton Follansbee, will depart Thursday by motor for a resort near Charleston, N. C., to join Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Edward S. Funtzen, the McKnight road, who are there for the summer. Mrs. Follansbee will remain in the South with her mother and Mr. Morton will return after a short visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Hubert B. Peugnet, 5041 Waterman avenue, and Dr. Peugnet's sister, Miss Claire Peugnet, 4422 Lindell boulevard, have gone to Sturgeon Bay, Wis., where they will spend several weeks at Cabot Lodge.

Lynn Gamble, of New York, who formerly of St. Louis, with his young daughter, Dorothy, were guests last week for a few days of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Perlee E. Burton, 204 East Swoon avenue, Webster Groves. Mrs. Gamble and their other daughter, are at the Edgewater Beach Hotel for a few weeks. They are visiting a Century of Progress Exposition during their stay in Chicago.

Miss Elizabeth Kemmer, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Benjamin T. Kemmer, Duluth, Minn., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Endres Meyer, Ladue lane, will be the guest of honor at several parties this week. Today she was honored at a luncheon given by Mrs. Meyer's mother, Mrs. Josephine Drake Boyd, at her home in Kirkwood. Tomorrow Mrs. Joel Y. Lund, 7627 Wydown boulevard, will be hostess at a luncheon for the visitor and tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Miles E. Thurston, Dromara road, will give a swimming party for Miss Kemmer at the Algonquin Golf Club. Sunday night Mr. and Mrs. Gramont Altenbernd, Hunteleigh Village, gave a picnic in honor of Miss Kemmer. She expects to return to her home next week.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Swift, Brentmoor, are in Paris following a visit in London, where they were guests at the Savoy Hotel. Other St. Louisians in London were Robert E. Blake, and William H. Moulton who arrived recently in London from Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Cohen, 1479 Clara avenue, and their family have returned from a motor trip to South Haven, Mich.

Miss Cecile J. Fuld, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Fuld, 4501 Maryland avenue, and Miss Jacqueline Forchheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Forchheimer, 5448 Waterman avenue, have gone to Galveston, Tex., to spend several weeks with relatives.

The Council of Catholic Women will give card parties tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, at the Queens Daughters' Auditorium, 3730 Lindell boulevard.

Mrs. Edward C. McGrath, president of the council, will be assisted by the board of directors.

SON BORN TO LORD COWLEY

British Earl and Wife Living on Nevada Ranch.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., July 31.—Christian Arthur Wellesley, the fourth Earl of Cowley, and his second wife are the parents of a son, born yesterday.

Shortly after he was divorced from the former Mrs. Pickard, English actress, a year ago last June, the Earl married Mrs. Elsie May Himes young Reno divorcee and former hat check girl at a night club here. He and his present wife have been living at a ranch home in Washoe Valley, south of here, since their marriage. The son was named Garret Graham Wellesley. The Earl had three children by his first wife.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Examinations for credit in high school subjects will be given at Roosevelt High School Friday and Saturday, between 8 a. m. and noon each day. This is for the accommodation of pupils of all the public high schools desiring to make up subjects, although public summer schools were not conducted.

About 1000 boys and girls have been studying at various private schools under tutors or at home. They are eligible, Assistant Superintendent of Instruction Powell announced, to take the examinations. They have been instructed to report to the Roosevelt auditorium. For those who pursued one subject the examination will be on Friday; for those taking two subjects, both examinations may be taken Friday, or one each day.

BENJAMIN LANDAUER DIES

Commission Man's Body Found by Maid in Home.

Benjamin Landauer, 66 years old, a commission merchant, died, apparently of heart disease, yesterday at his home, 5630 Waterman avenue.

He had returned home at noon and after lunch went to his room to take a nap, as was his custom. At 2 p. m. the maid, Miss Clara Augustine, was unable to wake him. She called the family physician, who pronounced him dead. An inquest will be held.

St. Louis the Only City Where Downtown Stores Are Cooled Economically from Underground Refrigerating Pipe Lines

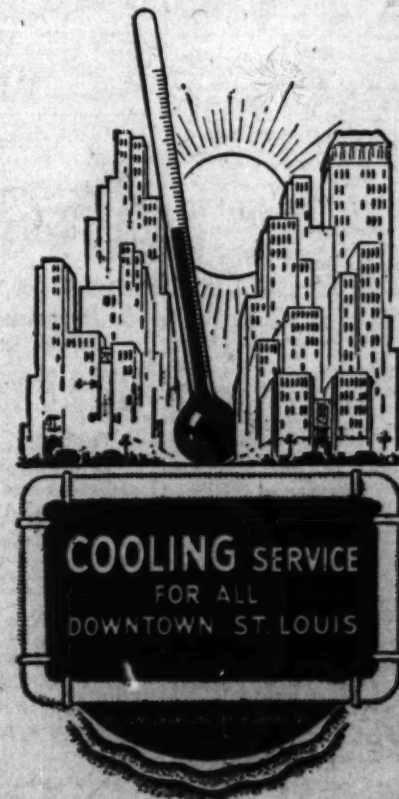

St. Louisans are fortunate in being able to shop, eat and transact most of their business in air-cooled establishments. The list at the right shows a surprising number and variety of business houses now offering this comfort service to their customers. The public, by its patronage, is expressing its emphatic approval of the idea of a downtown air-cooled business district.

Any downtown concern can be easily and quickly connected with the underground pipe line refrigerating service supplied by this Company.

Air-cooling for a store, suite of offices, or entire building is thus available without the cost and trouble of a separate complex air conditioning installation.

The rapid spread of air-cooling as a service to the public has been due to this unique central station system of supplying refrigeration via pipe line.

New installations are rapidly being added. The service can be connected on short notice and at a surprisingly low cost.
